

Fair Trade Body And State Codes May be Dissolved

Assembly Majority Not Big Enough to Force Action

WYLLIE ASSAILED
Party Lines are Broken
On Badger Code
Proposals

Madison—(P)—Dissolution of the state fair trade practice commission and all of its industrial codes regulating wages, hours and prices was regarded as a certainty in legislative circles today.

Supporters of the code law, which expires tomorrow, had sufficient assembly votes to re-enact it for six months, but the majority was not big enough to suspend the rules and clear the log jam created by the resolution for final adjournment of the legislature Friday.

The assembly debate involved a direct attack upon Fred M. Wylie, Madison, member of the trade practice commission and former Progressive candidate for the state supreme court.

When Assemblyman Maurice Fitzsimons (D), Fond du Lac, discovered two house clerks taking shorthand notes on the arguments, he stopped the proceedings under call.

Sees Political Motive
Later on, a point of personal privilege, he charged that Wylie had asked the clerks to take notes for political purposes.

Asserting that legislative employees receive $6 a day from the state, Fitzsimons said that the assembly "has now seen how political high muggs of the state departments work."

"If Wylie wants this for political future, let him pay for it out of his own pocket, not out of the funds of the legislature," he said.

Party lines on the code law were split. The original bill of Assemblyman Byrde M. Vaughan (P), Wisconsin Rapids, was intended to revise the law and the commission on something more than a current emergency basis, such as it had been in the past.

Compromise Plan
It finally emerged, however, as a compromise from its supporters to permit the present setup to remain for six months, in the hope that the ultimate fate of the commission and its work could be settled at the forthcoming special session of the legislature.

The bill for a temporary law was engrossed—advanced to the passage stage—by a vote of 53 to 36. Republican opponents who had tried to limit the law to not more than six specified trades, took advantage of a rule protecting house minorities.

Assemblyman Vernon Thomson (R), Richland Center, moved reconsideration of the engrossment vote. Since the majority did not have a two-thirds vote to take up the motion at once, it went over to Thursday. If the bill is passed Thursday, the same maneuver may be used to prevent it reaching the senate before the final adjournment at noon Friday.

The code law is an outgrowth of NRA days. It now covers more than a dozen industries, mainly service trades which originally asked for wage, hour and price regulations, but has never affected manufacturing industries.

Some of the Republicans were willing to make the law applicable, after tomorrow, to barbers, dry cleaners, shoe repairers, beauty operators, auto dealers and highway contractors. Others wanted to cut out the last two.

Assemblyman John Grobschmidt (P), Milwaukee, maintained that the only chance of having the law survive this session was to continue as it is, temporarily.

A large group of the visitors in the assembly galleries were code advocates who applauded when the house refused to adjourn without engrossing the bill.

Galesville, Wis.—(P)—The Rev. J. O. Jovaag, Gale college president, offered his resignation yesterday to the board of trustees. His successor will be selected at a meeting of the board soon. Mr. Jovaag received a call from a Minnesota church but has not accepted.

Relief and Tax Measures Go to Gov. LaFollette

$750,000 Aid to Northern Counties and Revenue
Bill to Get O.K.

Madison—(P)—The Nelson bill, appropriating $750,000 to meet the relief costs of 28 northern counties, went to Governor LaFollette today along with the administration's budget-balancing tax bill as the legislature pressed on toward adjournment Friday.

The governor signed the tax bill immediately. His approval of the Nelson bill is assured.

Thirteen members of the assembly voted against concurrence in the relief bill on a 77 to 13 roll call as a protest against senate action in crediting Senator John Nelson (R), Maple, with the authorship after the house had passed a similar measure by Speaker Paul Alfonsi (P), Pence.

It was the last chapter in a bitter controversy between Alfonsi and Nelson which led the speaker to charge that administration leaders in the senate were rewarding Nelson for support he gave to Progressive bills.

Assails Nelson
"Now that this bill is passed a lot of northern counties are going to be jubilant," Alfonsi said. "I'm sure that the senator from Maple has been amply repaid for some of the votes he cast which were contrary to his convictions."

When the bill was passed by the senate last night, Senator Nelson charged that an unnecessary rumormongering was being done.

American Team Retains Trophy

Defeats British Picked Professionals, 8 to 4.
At Southport

Southport, England—(P)—Scoring its first victory on British soil, the United States Ryder cup team today retained the international golf trophy by defeating Great Britain's picked team of professionals, 8 to 4.

The triumph, first for either side on the other team's home grounds, brought the standing in the series that was begun in 1927 to four matches for the Americans and two for the British.

Most decisive of the five United States victories in today's singles matches was scored by open champion Ralph Guldahl, who routed the British champion, Alf Padgham, by 6 and 7. But it was Gene Sarazen, veteran of each of the past five teams who brought home the point that assured the invaders of retaining the trophy, and another veteran, Ed Dudley, who came in with the victory that put the Americans out in front to stay.

When Sarazen, who made up a three-hole deficit on the last nine, turned in his 1 up defeat of Percy Alliss, he brought the score to United States 6, Britain 4, with two matches still to be completed.

French Senate Backs Premier In His Demands

Votes Sweeping Powers to Government in Fiscal Crisis

DECREES AWAITED
New Financial Dictator to Let Franc Seek Own
Level Abroad

Paris—(P)—The French senate today granted Camille Chautemps' government the sweeping powers it had demanded to save the nation's money structure.

The vote was 167 to 82. The chamber of deputies already had approved the measure.

Enactment of the "decree power" measure permits Chautemps, financial dictator-designate, to let the franc seek its own lower level in world markets, take steps to conserve France's tapped gold supply, stop speculative abuses, control prices, try to balance the budget and attempt economic recovery.

All that is needed now for Finance Minister Bonnet to issue his decrees, which are expected to include devaluation, is publication of the new law in the official journal tomorrow morning.

Decrees abolishing the present limits on the range of the franc, inflating the currency by loans of from 12 to 15 billion francs from the Bank of France to the government and imposing new taxes were expected.

Markets to Reopen
Financial quarters believed markets, now closed, would not open until Monday to permit adjustment of the expected decrees.

The senate finance committee approved, 20 to 3, the government's bill for a "free hand" in the fiscal crisis.

It was this committee's opposition to similar decree powers which brought the downfall of Leon Blum's regime 10 days ago.

Among the 10 committee members who abstained from voting was Joseph Caillaux, an opponent of the people's front government and finance minister in the Briand cabinet. He was one of the foremost opponents of Blum.

Parkers are Given U. S. Prison Terms

Father Gets 6 Years and Son 3 Years in Wendel
Kidnaping Case

Newark, N. J.—(P)—Ellis Parker, Sr., chief of the Burlington county detectives, was sentenced to six years in a federal penitentiary today and his son, Ellis, Jr., to three years for plotting the kidnaping of Paul H. Wendel.

The Parkers were convicted a week ago today of conspiring to seize and torture Wendel, former Trenton lawyer, to obtain from him a false confession to the Lindbergh baby kidnaping. The "confession," investigated by two grand juries, delayed the execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann three days.

The jury, which heard testimony for nine weeks, recommended leniency and Federal William Clark, Jr., imposed the sentences today, said that the recommendations would carry "great weight."

Half an hour after the sentencing, Chief Defense Counsel J. Mercer Davis announced an appeal would be taken to the United States circuit court of appeals.

Pending the appeal, Judge Clark fixed bail of $20,000 each. Since their indictment last fall and during the trial, the Parkers have been under bail of $25,000 and $10,000.

Milk Price Bill Faces
Battle in Lower House

Madison—(P)—Assembly lines formed today for a battle on the senate bill re-enacting the state milk price regulation law for another two years.

Under a commanding majority to force it through before adjournment Friday, the state's authority to stabilize milk markets by fixing prices to consumers and producers will come to an end.

The assembly reached the measure on its calendar of special business this morning but recessed until 7 o'clock p. m. for the annual baseball game between picked teams of the two houses this afternoon.

The bill faced strong opposition in the house.

$200,000 Fire Suspend
Work for 2,600 Employees

Canton, Ill.—(P)—Fire which started in the paint department and spread to two hours forced suspension of operations today at the $3,000,000 International Harvester Co. plant employing 2,600 men.

M. J. LeClerc, works manager, estimated the damage in excess of $200,000. He said reconstruction will be started immediately and that a shift in operations to undamaged parts of the plant will permit resumption of work within a few days.

Firemen from Peoria, Galesburg, Farmington, Cuba and Elmwood joined the Canton department yesterday afternoon in fighting the blaze. Three plant employees were injured, none seriously.

Homes and Yachts Incorporated to Avoid Tax Levies

Washington—(P)—A congressional investigating committee received testimony today that Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, Mrs. Taylor and the late Alfred I. Du Pont had reduced taxes by incorporating family residences.

Arthur H. Kent, assistant general counsel of the treasury, also to the tax inquiry committee that Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., chairman of the General Motors corporation, and Mrs. Emily R. Cadwalader, Ft. Washington, Pa., had effected tax savings by incorporating yachts.

Next Kent named Ed Wynn, the actor and radio entertainer; Fritz Kreisler, the noted violinist, and Percy Crosby, creator of a newspaper cartoon character, as persons who had incorporated "personal trusts" to reduce taxes.

These artists, the attorney said, hired themselves to personal corporations formed to sell their talents, usually for "substantially less than the income derived by the corporation" for their services. In this way, Kent said, Kreisler made tax savings of $33,264 from 1934 to 1936 and Crosby of $72,941 from 1933 to 1936, while Wynn had sought to obtain savings of $196,728 from 1932 to 1936.

Eau Claire Man Arrested After Girl Is Killed

Enmity Between Brothers
Is Blamed for Fatal
Shooting

Eau Claire—(P)—Smoldering enmity of Carl Johnson, 35, for his brother, Alf Johnson, by whom he had been employed until a month ago, is believed by police responsible for the death of Joyce Sorenson, 14, who was shot down as she rolled past near her home about 7 o'clock last night.

Carl Johnson, arrested shortly after the fatal shooting when police traced the course of a .22 caliber rifle bullet to a window of his home, at first said he was shooting "birds on the tree." This morning, however, he told police he shot through the glassed-in porch of his brother's home to "scare his brother."

He was being further questioned this morning but declared he did not see anyone on the porch or the sidewalk beyond the porch when he fired.

Describes Slaying
The Sorenson girl was standing on the sidewalk talking to two playmates. "I heard what I thought was a firecracker," said Betty Johnson, 13, a playmate. "Joyce kind of shivered and fell hard on the sidewalk. She did not get up and Delores Inerson saw some blood on the sidewalk."

It was not until after the girl was examined at a hospital that it was discovered she had been shot, the bullet entering her back and passing through her body.

This morning police found two bullets imbedded in the siding of the Alf Johnson home within a foot or two of where the shot that killed Joyce was fired through the porch window and out the other side.

Mrs. Carl Johnson said that after the shooting her husband turned to her and said "I suppose the police will be after me now."

Carl Johnson had been employed as a machinist by his brother. Both said they had gotten along well together for more than a year.

Take Boy's Body from River at Green Bay

Green Bay—(P)—Earl Collins, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl J. Collins, Jr., drowned in Fox river here last night. The body was recovered at 8 o'clock this morning by police who conducted an all-night search after the child had been reported missing early last evening.

Earl, with a playmate, Clarence Gardner, 5, had been playing along the waterfront in the downtown section in the afternoon. Clarence told Mayor John S. Farrell, who assisted in the search, Clarence led police to the spot where he said, "Earl was running on this pling when he stubbed his toe and fell in." No inquest was planned.

Publishers Opposed to Closed Shop Contracts For Editorial Workers

Chicago—Unalterable opposition to the closed shop for those who prepare and edit news copy and pictures for newspapers was unanimously voiced here yesterday afternoon by representatives of 563 American newspaper publishers gathered to discuss the problem created by the American Newspaper Guild's recent demand for closed shop agreements.

The resolution expressing the publishers' determination to oppose the closed shop demand came near the end of an all-day discussion in which it was emphasized that the publishers are in no way opposed to collective bargaining for better pay and better working conditions, but that the closed shop principle could not be applied to the news.

The text of the resolution stating the publishers' position follows: "The newspaper editors and publishers from all sections of the United States individually and through their co-operative associations listed below are gathered here to take action upon the American Newspaper Guild's recent declaration for the closed shop in editorial and news departments. We recognize the fact that when a public utility is presented to the public as an essential service, the public is entitled to a statement of opposition to collective bargaining, better hours, pay or working conditions for newspaper men and women.

A Fundamental Right
We are here to discuss the closed shop as a matter of journalistic and public principle, not as an economic issue.

Relief Funds Win Approval Of President

Measure Provides Total of $1,500,000,000 Federal Aid

WPA ROLLS SLASHED
'No Really Serious Complaints' on Curtailment, Report

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt signed the $1,500,000,000 relief bill today. It provides $1,235,000,000 for WPA, $100,000,000 for the resettlement administration, and $75,000,000 for the national youth administration for use in the fiscal year beginning tomorrow.

During the current fiscal year WPA spent approximately $1,860,000,000. The reduction in funds will require the dismissal of thousands of relief workers each week between now and July 15, Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, has set an employment figure of 1,865,477 for that date.

On June 5 there were 1,860,000 on WPA rolls, a decrease of 12,000 from the preceding week.

Few Real Complaints
WPA officials said there had been no "really serious complaints" from most of the states over the curtailment—that the majority received so far were from New York city, where the rolls are to be cut from 180,000 to 157,000.

The officials said that with the new relief appropriation there will be no change in the type of project undertaken, nor in the average wage, which is about $54.

The quotas provide reductions for every state except Florida, where a few hundred will be added. Florida, officials pointed out, has a seasonal employment situation almost the reverse of other states.

Hopkins began spending huge relief funds back in May, 1933. At that time, congress had put up $500,000,000 for the federal emergency relief administration.

Since then, associates estimated, the various agencies under Hopkins' command have spent $6,766,649,697.

Pailful of Dye Poured Upon CIO Organizer

Fond du Lac—(P)—Alfred C. Benson, state CIO organizer, was soaked with a pailful of dye yesterday as he prepared to address a street meeting for Rueping tannery employees.

With his light hat, white suit and brown shoes turned into a smeary blue, Benson gave his address and then hurried to a hotel to change into a new outfit of clothing.

Benson when he returned to his home in Milwaukee last night, said the dye was thrown from a window of the tannery.

"The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America have already arranged to file further charges against the company with the state labor board," Benson said, "and also to start a civil action, with the dye incident as a basis. The charges already filed claim interference with labor organization efforts and also declare the company is attempting to turn the union into an independent union."

U. S. Officers Seize Still in Cottage Raid

Oconomowoc—(P)—Federal alcohol tax unit agents raided a cottage in the town of Summit near here early today and seized a still they said had a daily capacity of 30 gallons of alcohol.

The 26-year-old William Lemke, 26, on charges of possessing an unregistered still, untaxed alcohol and fermenting mash. He was taken to Milwaukee for arraignment.

Lane Moloney, head of the alcohol tax unit, said Lemke denied owning the still but did not offer to explain its presence.

Moloney received a "tip" yesterday the still was operating and sent three agents after dark to watch the cottage. The agents said they seized 13,000 gallons of mash, 2,500 pounds of sugar, 50 pounds of yeast and the still equipment valued at $5,000.

Pickets Hurl Stones As Workers Return to Jobs; 8 Men Injured

Jap-Manchoukuoan Forces Sink Soviet Gunboat and Fire on 2 Others, Report

Hsinking, Manchoukuo—(P)—A Japanese army communiqué announced today that Japanese-Manchoukuoan land forces had sunk one Soviet Russian gunboat, inflicted heavy losses on another and repulsed a third vessel after being fired upon at Blagoveshchensk, on the Amur river.

The communiqué asserted three Soviet boats, "invading" south Kanchatu island below Blagoveshchensk, "opened fire on Japanese-Manchoukuoan guards." The Japanese action followed.

The Manchoukuo government immediately filed a vigorous protest to Moscow against the alleged invasion.

The Amur river runs along the northeastern Manchoukuo-Siberian border.

Jap Announcement
The new border clash followed close upon an announcement yesterday by the Japanese embassy in Moscow that the Russian government had agreed to withdraw troops and boats concentrated at Bolshoi and Sennufu islands in the Amur river.

That announcement said that Manchoukuo would then withdraw troops from a nearby shore position.

Both Russia and Japan have asserted sovereignty over the islands, creating a situation regarded in Moscow as one of the most tense in recent Russo-Japanese relations.

There have been several border clashes between Russia and Japanese-Manchoukuoan troops in recent weeks. Russian dispatches from Siberia laid these to "provocative attempts" to block navigation on the Amur river and seize the islands which Russia claims under treaties nearly a century old.

Virtual Ultimatum
The Japanese ambassador to Moscow was understood to have presented a virtual ultimatum that the Russians evacuate both islands. A Japanese embassy spokesman in Moscow asserted the ambassador had warned the Russians there was a possibility of war unless the military reinforcements were withdrawn.

The Japanese ambassador said Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, had accepted his advice that an amicable settlement could be reached only after soviet troops were removed.

In Tokio, Japanese officials invoked a mutual assistance pact with the Japanese-inspired state of Manchoukuo against what they termed Russian invasion of the islands.

The communist party newspaper Pravda in Moscow termed the frontier incidents "another manifestation of the well-known facts of Japanese militarists in trying by every means to provoke conflicts on the borders of the Soviet Union."

Teachers' Tenure Bill Wins Passage

Senate Measure Receives
Approval of Wisconsin
Assembly

Madison—(P)—The teachers' tenure bill went to Governor LaFollette today after the assembly rejected today an amendment which would have barred from tenure rights any teacher whose husband or wife is earning $2,000 or more a year.

The senate bill, as finally approved by the legislature, prohibits discharge of public school teachers except for cause after they have served a five-year period of probation. When a teacher transfers to another school system, he must serve another two-year probationary period before acquiring the protection of his new position.

Effective Aug. 1, the measure provides that no teacher who has been a permanent employee of a school system after such probationary period shall be dismissed without filing of written charges by the managing body or directing officer of the school system.

When such charges are filed, the teacher may demand a hearing within 30 days before the managing body of the system. Its decision will be final.

Ex-Alderman Accused Of Drunken Driving

Oshkosh—(P)—Arthur Coffey, former alderman, was arraigned before Municipal Judge Henry H. Huchins yesterday charged with drunken driving, reckless driving, and failing to stop for an arterial.

Cecil Carpenter, father of 7-month-old Marion Carpenter, who was killed June 20 in an auto collision between the Coffey and Carpenter cars, turned the complaint. Preliminary hearing was set for July 6.

Flood Control Survey
Washington—(P)—The board of army engineers took under consideration today the request of Fond du Lac, Wis., for a general survey of that area preliminary to a flood control undertaking.

A preliminary survey of the proposal was adverse. Allen Edgerton, city attorney for Fond du Lac, and Representative M. K. Reilly, Fond du Lac, appeared at a hearing before the board to urge that a general survey be made.

Edgerton argued that the preliminary survey did not accurately set out all the facts in the case. He declared floods sometimes cause such damage that a thorough investigation would show justification for a flood control project.

Operations Being Resumed Under Protection of Troops

BOMB WATER MAIN
Guardsmen Force Pickets
Back as Workers
Re-Enter Plants

Canton, Ohio—(P)—Rock-throwing pickets injured eight non-striking workers entering mills of Republic Steel corporation today in a back-to-work movement.

Operations in three of Republic's Canton mills were resumed successfully, under protection of the Ohio national guard, after an early morning flare-up.

Evacuation of 2,000 men, interned in the plant since the strike was called May 25, was under way in groups of 500 at a time, as non-striking workers moved in to take their places.

Dynamite smashed a water main, quickly repaired; telephone wires were ripped from poles, and jeering pickets herded back by heavily armed guardsmen, aided by two low flying airplanes, as the back-to-work movement was started.

One seriously hurt worker was Louis Govel, who was hit in the head by a rock as he entered the alloy plant of Republic. He may have a concussion of the brain.

Other Fronts Quiet
Comparative quiet ranged along the other fronts of the Great Lakes steel strike, now entering the second month of a walkout called by the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee over refusal of four independent steel companies to sign labor contracts.

The concerns are Republic, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Inland Steel and the Bethlehem Steel corporation.

At Johnstown, Pa., where the Cambria works of Bethlehem was harried yesterday by roaring dynamite blasts which snapped two water pipelines, Mayor James J. Shields ordered CIO leaders to leave the city.

Mark C. J. O. leader in Johnstown, and C. W. Jones, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, were called before council meeting last night and told their presence was inimical to community peace.

The labor leaders refused to go. Said Mark: "We are both good American citizens. We intend to stay here until we leave of our own accord."

At the same time, Mark telegraphed Governor George H. Earle.

Negro Bound Over for Murder Trial at Beloit

Beloit—(P)—Albert Dye, 35-year-old Negro, was bound over to the Rock county circuit court for trial following a preliminary hearing yesterday on a first degree murder charge. Date for the trial was not set.

Dye was brought before Judge Chester H. Christensen in connection with the slaying of George L. Carr, 25, manager of the Beloit Cigar House, during a robbery of the company's office June 21.

Consider Dropping Non-Intervention Program in Spain

By the Associated Press
Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain called the British cabinet into session to consider possible abandonment of the entire "hands off Spain" non-intervention scheme.

In the face of determined German and Italian opposition to his Spanish war policy.

Both Germany and Italy remained firm in their rejection of a British-French proposal for taking over the entire naval patrol of Spain's coast to prevent arms and men from reaching either side in the Spanish conflict.

Germany and Italy recalled warships from the patrol last week. Informed Italian circles accused Britain and France of favoring the Spanish government.

French official sources in Paris expressed the opinion that the international naval control plan could be considered as virtually ended if Germany and Italy insisted in their opposition to strictly Franco-British surveillance.

Promiscuous Okay On Additions to School Is Scored

Board Member Points Only
$100,000 Remains for Equipment

C. K. Boyer, school board member, cautioned the board against promiscuous approval of suggestions and additions for the new senior high school when the group met at the Lincoln school last evening. Mr. Boyer said he was not criticizing any previous actions but funds were limited.

"Additions and changes have already cost about $5,000 and the only money to draw upon is $100,000 set aside for equipping the school," Mr. Boyer said. He said it would be beneficial to include the many suggested improvements but it was impossible to finance them and a line must be drawn lest the money for furniture and fixtures be exhausted.

Public liability insurance on all school property was suggested in a letter from Daniel Steinberg, Jr. It was decided to confer with the mayor and city attorney in a joint investigation to determine the necessity of liability insurance.

Request Denied
George L. Smith, architect, said the request to PWA officials for permission to extend the working week of employees of the plumbing contractors, P. J. Gallagher and Sons, from 36 to 40 hours a week had been denied because of insufficient reason. He added, however, that a letter had been written by Fred R. Gehrke, manager of the local Wisconsin State Employment Service office, that plumbers and helpers were not available and he expected the ruling to be reversed.

The plumbing firm submitted a request to the school board for the longer working week because crews employed by the general contractor work 40 hours a week and said it is impossible to keep pace with construction at the new high school.

Award Contract
Ryan and Long was awarded a contract amounting to $557 for plumbing at the Jefferson school. Other bids submitted are as follows: Wenzel Bros., $679; Reinhardt Wenzel, $657; Nick Klein, $700; W. S. Patterson, $778.

Langstadt Electric company submitted the only bid on a clock system at Jefferson school and was awarded the contract for $240. The firm was awarded contracts for wiring at Wilson and Roosevelt Junior High schools totaling $177. Reinhardt and Court was instructed to get necessary parts for $205.09 to repair the furnace at the Richmond school.

Motorists are Urged To Drive Carefully Over July Fourth

Mayor Goodland today asked motorists to drive carefully over the Fourth of July holiday weekend and coupled the plea with a warning to parents to enforce the rules of safety in permitting children to shoot off fireworks in order to prevent mishaps.

Every year a heavy toll of lives is taken in traffic accidents throughout the United States, he said in pointing out that over the weekend traffic will be unusually heavy on the highways. Persons who can should refrain from driving at night and if it is necessary to cut down speed and see that their lights are in perfect working order.

Burns from firecrackers and other fireworks also result in deaths to youths and children each year, he warned. Care should be exercised when they are used, he stated. "A safe and sane Fourth of July will make it a happy one," he said.

Farm Relations Board Is Asked In Late Proposal

Body Would Serve in Same

Manner as Labor Relations Board

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Creation of a farmer's relations board to serve Wisconsin agriculture in the manner that the labor relations board serves state labor is proposed in a last minute bill offered in the assembly by Assemblyman Joseph Barbart of Marathon county.

Assemblyman Barbart is one of the legislators who has frequently complained during this session that the Wisconsin farmer was being neglected. His bill provides for a state wide convention to unify all farmers cooperative marketing organizations and to assist agriculture in establishing marketing machinery owned and controlled by the farmers, and creation by the convention of a "Wisconsin Farmers' Relations Board."

The board will act with the state department of agriculture as arbitrators in disputes, whether resulting in strikes or between persons, firms, and corporations doing business with farmers. The board would adopt and publish rules for the conduct of arbitration.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

The Party Purge

Lippman

Five months ago Dr. Stanley High, who had worked hard for Mr. Roosevelt's re-election, published an article in "The Saturday Evening Post" in which he predicted that there would be a purge of the Democratic party. He named Vice President Garner and Senator Robinson as congenial opponents of the New Deal who would, as they say in Europe, soon begin to roll. Dr. High was at once bluntly repudiated by the White House. But it now appears that his crime was not that he had misrepresented the facts but that prematurely he had let the cat out of the bag.

For no sooner had his article appeared than there began that series of actions which so sharply differentiate Mr. Roosevelt's second term from his first. The difference lies in this: that in the first term the program of the President, whether well conceived or badly, was concerned with recovery, relief and reform, whereas in the second term the program is devoted to the establishment of an overwhelming centralized governmental power resting on a new bureaucracy allied with organized class interests.

Since the election there has been a revolution within the New Deal administration itself, and in the course of this revolution there is a purge of those Democrats who cannot be counted upon.

Purge Is Not As Ruthless As Against Supreme Court

The purge which Dr. High predicted is not being conducted with the same ruthlessness which has been employed against the supreme court. The journalists who have the inside track have not yet been unleashed against Messrs. Garner, Robinson, Harrison, and Byrnes as they were against the Nine Old Men. After all, these Democratic leaders, unlike the judges, represent political organizations which carry votes with them.

So instead of being subjected to frontal attack, they are being destroyed by attrition. They are being confronted with one measure after another that compels them to choose between their conscientious convictions and their partisan loyalty. They have had to support or at least to acquiesce in the scheme to pack the court, in the scheme to seize control of the independent commissions, in the alliance with the CIO, in the convulsions at the sit-down strikes, in the continuation of Executive spending by blank check, and finally in the setting up of a Presidential board empowered to regulate at its discretion wages and hours in every important industry.

They Must Either Fight Now Or Confess Subservience

The choice offered to these men is either to fight now or to confess their complete subservience and assent to the destruction of their influence and reputation by compromising everything they believe in. If they fight, they may be beaten. But if they do not fight, their political destruction is certain. If they assent and go along and do what they are asked to do, they will hate themselves and when they are no longer useful for keeping up appearances they will either be kicked upstairs into oblivion or be kicked out into private life. By that time they will be so compromised that the New Dealers will have no further use for them and the opposition will not trust them.

In a word, the regular Democratic leaders are in a position where their remaining influence will either be exploited until it is used up, or they must take a stand now and re-establish themselves as independent men. For them the time of decision has arrived. They will either be broken or saved in the near future. They must decide whether they will serve the New Deal, knowing that they are distrusted by it and will only be used while they are useful, or they must do what so many of their fellow Democrats have done, what Wheeler and Glass, what Burke and Byrd, what O'Mahoney and King have done: they must stand now and fight now for the things they believe in.

If They Yield Now They Cannot Regain Later

Let them not imagine that if they yield on the judiciary and on the capture of the commissions and on the Presidential fixing of wages and hours and on the uncontrolled expenditure of funds that at some later date they can somehow restore the checks and balances of the American constitutional system. These measures are the substance of a radical transformation of the government and of the party system, the powers of the New Dealers will be almost impossible to liquidate by ordinary democratic procedure. With the courts and the commissions and the Congress and all large industry and great masses of subsidized voters all under one central control, there will exist a power which no normal political opposition can hope to check.

Now, therefore, is the time for resistance. The issue can still be fought out in debate and by appeal to the people. But when this proposed concentration of power has been consummated, it will almost certainly be too late to do anything about it through the normal processes of popular government.

Pure Bred Horses Increase in State

Predict Clear Strain for All Licensed Stallions in Wisconsin

Madison—Asserting that the day is not far distant when all stallions licensed in Wisconsin will be of pure breeding, Dr. V. S. Larson, veterinary supervisor of the department of agriculture and markets pointed out today that 97.5 of all stallion licenses issued in this state in 1936 were for pure bred stallions only 2.5 per cent were for scrubs and grades.

Since the enactment of the first stallion registration law in 1905, the percentage of grade or scrub stallions licensed in Wisconsin has gradually decreased, he said, while the percentage of pure bred stallions has increased correspondingly.

"The extent of this improvement in the Wisconsin horse industry is apparent when it is remembered that at the time the first stallion registration law was enacted, 65 per cent of the stallions were not of pure breeding and only 35 per cent were pure bred," he commented.

The department has information, he said, that at least 200 unlicensed grade or scrub stallions were permanently returned from public service in Wisconsin last year.

Three New Parks Open To Badger Tourists

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington — Three new parks and recreational centers will provide a haven to Wisconsin vacationists this summer, the department of agriculture announces. As part of the land use program of the Resettlement Administration, Wisconsin is to have public camps and picnic grounds located in the Black River Valley, Necedah and Mill Bluff.

The three Badger projects are among seventy-two such recreational centers that will be ready for summer use in all parts of the country, RA says.

The Badger projects will convert misused land into camp-grounds with cabins, picnic and recreational facilities.

"The need for recreation facilities for small towns and rural communities is one factor responsible for these developments," says the bureau's Land Utilization Director Dr. L. C. Gray.

Work Progressing on City Building Code

Good progress in drawing up a building code ordinance was reported by the special committee which met Monday evening at the city hall. A tentative ordinance modeled on those of other cities has been set up and the committee is meeting with various contractors and builders to discuss its various phases. Louis Luebke, city electrician, is chairman of the special committee appointed recently by Mayor Goodland.

Sloppiness is just as intolerable during summer as during any season, but there are still a lot of fellows who take it for granted that the hotter the weather, the worse they can afford to look.

So, at the risk of appearing impertinent, we suggest that you come to Ferron's tomorrow. You'll like what you find here, and you'll be glad to know that prices are unusually moderate. Look below for specific examples.

Court Question Still Far From Dead: Lawrence

Roosevelt Alliance With Lewis Also Bothers Capitol Hill

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Several days having passed since President Roosevelt gathered to his side at Jefferson Island the members of his party, Capitol Hill has had an opportunity to appraise the episode in the light of its possible meaning with respect to the supreme court bill.

First of all, it may be stated that Mr. Roosevelt did not debate public issues with his guests except in the most incidental fashion. He made no effort to win converts to his causes. He merely sought to reestablish the same spirit of good fellowship which was so characteristic of the early days of his first administration and which lately has given way to an atmosphere of bitterness.

Mr. Roosevelt had been told by the press and so many persons individually that he is possessor of a magic charm in personal conference that when the opportunity came to employ it in an emergency within the party, he naturally did not hesitate.

But what does all the conversation and conference with the members of the Democratic party in congress add up to? What effect will it have on the court bill?

Basically, the most significant thing about the Jefferson Island outing, in the words of a prominent Democratic senator who attended, was the fact that it had to be held at all. Certainly the president's belated recognition of the cleavage his policies are making in the Democratic ranks is better than no recognition at all.

Fundamental Issues

But fundamentally Mr. Roosevelt would have to abandon such things as the Corcoran wage and hour bill and his alliance with John Lewis and the CIO really to win back the confidence he once had among members of the insurgent Democratic group. He would also have to lay aside his proposal to "pack" the supreme court. None of these things apparently does Mr. Roosevelt intend to do.

On the contrary, the president has a scheme which is giving the anti-court senators a good deal of worry. Briefly, it is that the senate pass any court bill it wishes, as for instance, the compromise proposed by Senator Hatch. This bill would provide for the appointment of additional justices only to match those who are over 75 years of age and do not retire and the appointments would be spread out over a period of years.

To some of the middle-of-the-road senators this seems like a plausible proposition and it would not be surprising if it did pass. Then the president's trump card is to put his original bill to enlarge the supreme court through the house of representatives. It is conceded that unless public opinion is definitely aroused and members of the house hear from home as emphatically as did the senators, the measure might get through the house with a comfortable margin for the president.

Joint Committee Seen

Then the senate bill and the house bill would have to be ironed out in conference committee between the two houses. Mr. Roosevelt naturally would have some advantages in such an arrangement because it is usually easier to control both houses of congress. If the conference committee wrote a compromise, it might be one that leaned more closely toward the original plan of the president than toward the bill that passes the senate. This would be a victory for Mr. Roosevelt.

Senators opposed to the "packing" of the court are aware of the strategy and their first move undoubtedly will be to prevent any "compromise" measure from coming to a vote. This can be done by a "filibuster" but on the skill by which a filibuster is conducted will depend whether public opinion is alienated by refusal to allow the Hatch compromise to come to a vote.

On the whole the supreme court controversy is far from over with Mr. Roosevelt carried on his charm school at Jefferson Island only as a preliminary course of education with a few senators who he hopes will at least help him get a vote in the senate on some kind of a bill. The president, however, may have underestimated the strength of the opposition in the senate to the court measure. Certainly a filibuster has an even chance of killing all action on his bill at this session and to undo whatever good his harmony conferences at Jefferson Island may have accomplished for him.

What Mr. Roosevelt may not perceive is that it is his alliance with the forces of John Lewis which is causing dismay on Capitol Hill and that the road to harmony inside the Democratic party really lies in satisfying the south that its industries are not going to be controlled by a board in Washington and that the CIO domination will no longer be countenanced by the president.

American Freedom Demonstrated by Civil War—Landis

Appleton Physician Gives Talk at Rotary Club Yesterday

"Freedom of interrupting, thought and speech is best exemplified by the civil war," Dr. Ralph V. Landis, Appleton physician, declared during a talk on "The American Point of View" at a meeting of the Rotary club at Hotel Northern Tuesday noon.

Issues of the war emphasized loyalty to state before the nation and is clearly illustrated by the separation of officers and fellow cadets attending the West Point Military academy when the historical crisis arose, Dr. Landis continued.

Four major armies, the army of the Potomac, the army of Virginia, the northern army in the west and the southern army in the west, participated in the struggle with the western armies employing an Indian type of campaign and composed of sturdy pioneers, he said.

Mastery Retreat

The southern army in the west became great under the generalship of Joseph E. Johnson during his mastery retreat against Sherman in Georgia and it was a mistake to remove him from command, Dr. Landis asserted. The army of Virginia was characterized as "temperament steel of the finest quality which would not admit defeat, a mobile mass that battled effectively under General Lee."

"The army of the Potomac was made up of business and professional men and farmers in dire need of training. The men were unprepared and were disorganized. In spite of political interference, the army was courageous and presented a true example of persistence," Dr. Landis said. "Many times the army would advance, have the battle in hand and then retreat for an inexplicable reason."

General Grant was handicapped when he took command of the army of the Potomac because he was

Third Base Selection for All-Star Game Is Debated

BY JOE WILLIAMS

New York—Perhaps the most interesting feature of the National league's announcement of the squad of 23 players who will represent it in the all-star game in Washington next Tuesday is Bill Terry's studied and pointed snubbing of all the third basemen of that circuit. Ignoring the claims of Frankie Whitney, Stanley Hack and Don Gutteridge, Terry apparently plans to start Arky Vaughan, Pittsburgh shortstop, at the far turn. Dick Bartell will play short.

Terry's selections—and the American league choices of Joe McCarthy, too, for that matter—have drawn vehement criticism from coast to coast. But on no point are the popular squawk and the player plaint so ardent as they are on the political and other significances of the Terry elimination of all the guardians of what in the merry argot of the diamond, is called the hot corner.

Picking an outsider to play third base for the sake of more power is not exactly a new maneuver. The American league did in 1933 and again in 1934, when it called Jimmy Foxx over from first base, where it favored Lou Gehrig. But when the American league picked Jimmy, it also selected a regular third baseman as his understudy.

Terry Knows Third Basemen; Well Within His Rights

Terry certainly knows his third basemen, and is well within his rights and prerogatives in refusing to consider any of them for the drive to cut down a 2-game deficit in the annual joust with the American league.

But, for the future, it might be well to set down a regulation which will save the exponents of any position from losing face en masse.

Terry's placing every third baseman in the National league in the official doghouse confirms the local suspicion that Robert Abial Rolfe, the sorrel-topped, red-faced collegian of the Yankees, is the best man at the position in the majors.

Rolfe has passed Frank Higgins, of the Red Sox, who is on the wane. Red has fought off the challenge of Harold Clift, of the Browns, who is a good enough hitter, but lacks the Rolfe flair and skill in the field. The Yankee incumbent has swarmed all over Bill Werber, who once looked like class, but who, with a used to a flexible, irregular and movable army and was not versed in maneuvering an army accustomed to precise, open field tactics. He said the Northern salute, accorded the Southern army as arms were stacked in surrender, was a credit to the nation.

circle has seen since the Eddie Collins heyday. Perhaps the best since LaJolle, or for that matter, in the history of the league.

Gehrig has been in all four all-star games thus far played. He wants to be in this one, too, but feels it might injure the chances of the Tigers. However, William Haridge, president of the league, has refused to take Charley's name off the list. And it's almost certain that Gehrig will start.

McCarthy Criticized For Choosing Ferrell

McCarthy has been criticized for his selection of Wes Ferrell. Chicago says Zeke Bonura should have been chosen over Jimmy Foxx, and hints Marce Joe might have overlooked current averages, as he did in the case of Jimmy, and designated Luke Appling, the 1936 batting champion of the American league.

Terry's appointments have brought a lot of sour echoes in Brooklyn, where Memphis Bill is not any too well liked anyway. Flatbush fans shout that the pilot of the Giants went out of his way to snub the hard-hitting Heinie Manush, and picked Gene Moore, of the Bees. They even question Mel Ott's right to a post over Manush. Brooklyn also holds that Buddy Hassett presented claims superior to those of Jimmy Collins, who is hitting only .277.

However, it is well to remember that each manager picked his 23 men with the keenest desire to win. Each named his squad with a more

Hollywood News And Gossip

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—Even after years in Hollywood, it's startling to walk on a set and see a movie orchid ironing a blue work shirt or ironing anything. It's like catching your laundryman stumming your harp, if you have a harp.

Movie stars don't do their own ironing, except in pictures. When I walked on the "Dead End" set and saw Sylvia Sydney ironing away, it was surprising. She looked as if she knew how to iron. Her stance was correct. Her approach was almost professional. She said that was no wonder, because in pre-movie days she'd done her share of ironing.

That made it funnier when Director William Wyler, who claims to be a smoothie when it comes to ironing, tried to iron out her technique. He interfered when first she reached the ironing board before she tested the iron with wet finger.

"You always test the iron at the stove. Wanted her to wait until she said, not without smugness. 'Suppose the iron wasn't hot enough?'" intimate knowledge of all the players than you or I possibly could have.

Then you'd have to walk back to the stove."

"Looks better my way," he said. "Don't care how you want to have every woman in the country writing letters telling me I don't know how to iron."

That settled it. Sylvia won, too, on the way an ironer sprinkled a shirt Wyler, who's seen a number of Chinese laundrymen at work, water and blow on the shirt.

It's little things like this that can show up a director.

Smack-on-the-nose pen portrait of Jimmy Durante is this:

"Off the screen, Durante talks and acts as he does in his pictures. He talks equally fast from either side of his nose, speaking in short, jerky sentences, hurling his words at his listener with his whole body."

"In a conversation, Durante retreats behind his nose and lies in wait for the question. It comes. He darts out, pounces upon it, wrestles with it, teases at it, and spits it back out of the corner of his mouth, a mangled and beaten thing. The listener forgets that he is being talked to and thinks he is watching some extraordinary performance from a seat a little too close."

Wish I'd done it! Morley Warren, Albuquerque Tribune reporter, did.

Marconi's early wireless experiments were financed by his father, a wealthy resident of Bologna.

WEALTH GONE WITH THE STRIKE AND GONE FOREVER

Donald R. Richberg, in his address before railroad men at Milwaukee the other day, touched upon a profound truth in relation to our industrial affairs that seems to have gone unnoticed.

Mr. Richberg mentioned the fact that every hour that masses of men spend fighting each other "means the loss of untold wealth that our generation can never gain." That declaration is worth stopping and looking at again.

Most men assume that when they go back to work there will be just so much more and they will make up for their enforced idleness. That is not true.

When one reads that 100,000 steel workers out of employment for a month have lost 17 million dollars the fact is that they have done exactly that, lost 17 million dollars. And never in this life are they going to get it back.

A man is given a certain time walking around upon this earth. To some extent he may control the length of time he lives, but only in a limited way.

Since his days are numbered the days of his strength and virility are also numbered, the days that he may labor are numbered, and when those days have passed, very unfortunately, they have passed forever.

The 100,000 steel workers out of employment for a month have already lost 17 million dollars in wages. They will go back to work, we presume, in due course and after the vanity of men has been dried out of the picture, and sense and reason prevail, but they will never get back that 17 million dollars. Just as Mr. Richberg said, that wealth can never be regained by our generation.

The men involved in these strikes, the men who make our laws and rule our people, if they realized or even slightly appreciated the actually destructive effect upon the national economy of these useless struggles we wonder whether they would pass such one-sided laws solely for the purpose of tying a few more votes to their political chariots.

And the men involved in the strike—what of them?

Do they realize, will they not come to appreciate, that bungling laws and booming leaders have already cost them 17 million dollars that they will never get back again?

That is a high price, a terrible cost, to pay for either melodious or rasping voices.

All of these facts some day will come home to roost, and with them the fact that a simple and honest and straightforward law could really be passed to protect every fundamental right that labor wants and must have, but offset van or quick-tempered acts of a few leaders who may be irresponsible, and for whom the rank and file must pay out in lost wages these 17 millions, and so many more millions, too.

THIRD TERMS

Governor Earle's declaration that he is in favor of Mr. Roosevelt for a third term, if taken as sincere, gives some measure of the man, and of the various and sundry flatterers and hotwaxers that rule us and fatten upon us.

To elect any man to a third term as president of the United States would be a crime, a greater crime than murder, a greater crime than mass murder, for it would be pouring arsenic into the system we call the nation, a heinous act, and few would uphold it excepting those base-minded enough to sell out that nation for their own trifling personal advantages.

But we doubt that Governor Earle meant what he said. He was acting the part of the shy maiden standing with those reluctant feet "where the brook and river meet," and he was avoiding an answer concerning his own ambition for the presidency.

In so avoiding a direct answer Governor Earle was well within his rights.

But it is interesting to note how men who are even spoken of for that great office first announce their fealty and their loyalty to Mr. Roosevelt. Can it be they are thinking of the extensive amount of influence Mr. Roosevelt could wield in naming his successor? Quite so. The best policy is to keep cheering for the man at the helm in order to remain in his good graces.

Anyway it is quite premature to talk about 1940.

THE "BODY OF DEATH" SMELLS TO HEAVEN

The Montgomery Advertiser printed in the capital of Alabama merits more than the passing attention of the American people.

It has taken up the sword of St. George and is going out to battle for justice for the Scottsboro negroes in their now seven-year-old contest to save their lives and hides from that good old southern custom which says that if a white woman, however disreputable, accuses a black man, however decent, of an offense or a threat or even a leering look at her, he shall be hanged, quartered and burned. To act otherwise would be ungentlemanly and therefore unchivalrous.

Its initial editorial the Montgomery newspaper entitles "Throw Away This Body of Death." It is a suitable title. It signifies a sense of fervor with which the battle is to be waged. And fervor will be necessary.

The article details many of the facts believed to have influenced public sentiment in Alabama against the black boys. It says the people revolted against "the communistic vermin that swarmed into the picture." No doubt they did not make the task any easier for the defense, but it would be a mistake, we think, to blame them for a prejudice that has existed in the south since the Civil war terminated.

The article continues: "Scottsboro has stigmatized Alabama throughout the civilized world, and every informed person knows it. Scottsboro has injured Alabama incalculably. Since there is ground for reasonable doubt of the positive guilt of all the men now in jail, and since they are doing more than all other citizens of Alabama combined to injure the whole people of Alabama before the world, since nothing worth while can be gained by the state in pressing its pretensions to the bitter end, 'The Advertiser' herewith takes it upon itself to suggest that the state now move for a decent, dignified compromise."

The Montgomery Advertiser must be welcomed into the throng that has kept the burning light of publicity onto these cases because of their obvious and flagrant wrongs, and even though it only suggests a compromise when there can be no compromise excepting dismissal.

The right of juries to weigh evidence in a case goes unquestioned. But the right of the public to judge verdicts, particularly in view of admitted perjury, and facing the proposition that men must not die or be imprisoned without strong evidence of guilt, remains both a safe and admissible procedure.

There was no evidence against the accused excepting that of two female tramps mooching around the Southland, living in jungles, riding the rods, and exposed to elements other than those of the weather. It is possible that women may persist in this life and remain stainless, but the evidence against these particular women had to do with a dissolute life. After both of them had sworn against the defendants one recanted, admitted her story was made out of whole cloth and suggested by the officers who had already begun to make capital out of the case.

No jury would ever have convicted a white man upon such evidence. No jury would ever have convicted an animal roaming through the forest upon such evidence. Only an unpacked supreme court seemed to have the courage to twice turn back the human wolf-pack bent upon their destruction merely because they stood accused.

It is not merely that Alabama stands stigmatized by this piece of jungle justice but gradually through the intervening months its people have come to appreciate the gross injustice that is done, indeed, the enormity that is perpetrated, when the machinery of the law can be set upon its dreadful juggernaut route by evidence of so little strength or value.

JUNE MOON AND SCIENCE

The suggestion of a Pittsburgh scientist, Dr. Phillips Thomas, opens up a whole range of horrifying possibilities.

Dr. Thomas predicts that, one day, scientists will perfect a gadget that will determine without the possibility of doubt the answer to the age-old question the daisies try to tell: "She loves me, she loves me not."

The good Doctor believes that whatever we do, say or think, is accompanied by some type of radiation. The radiations may be electrical. If so, he points out, scientists may be able to capture and interpret them. Dials may register one's inmost thoughts. Cupid may be supplanted by calibration.

Perish the thought. The June moon is waning. Lovers, everywhere, sigh because this is so.

But will there be sighs when part of the equipment of every up-to-the-minute park bench will be a black box with illuminated dials and straps to circle the wrists of lovers?

Cupid, through the ages, has contemplated no such complicated contraption as this.

Complicated is the word. And the possibilities for complications are endless. A loved one's sigh will lose much of its power to stir the heart-strings when an unfeeling dial registers 22 points. And there will have to be some arrangement to prevent a spinning needle from wrecking the machinery.

THIS WAS BOUND TO HAPPEN

Jonah:

The greatest danger to the liberty of a free people is a press and government that caters to and is controlled by money. Mr. Big is the first president since Lincoln who is both uncontrollable by money and has the guts to champion the cause of the "small" man. And it doesn't take a seer to see that the small man would still be getting $1 a day if it wouldn't be for the fighting efforts of the unions. Was independence worth fighting for in 1776?

— LaFollette Progressive

— the note was headed: "Mr. Small," but all correspondence, be the salutation endearing or insulting, is reduced to a common denominator.

It is interesting to have a letter like this come in just now. Particularly interesting because the newspapers are perfectly willing to let both sides sound off as, for example, publication of the missive above.

Somehow this reminds me of the county G. O. P. official who berated your correspondent at length in 1932 because, although the G. O. P. had done a considerable quantity of advertising in the paper, the paper had been maintaining an open mind and had pointed out weaknesses in both sides. The official felt that we ought to forget about the G. O. P. weaknesses.

Then, in 1936, there were those among the Democrats who looked on us askance because the Democrats were doing considerable advertising in the paper, and the editors were still able to find holes in the Democratic logic.

Anyway, it appears to me that there are probably other dangers to the liberty of a free people, several of which have been pointed out from time to time by the columns at the left and in the writings of such as Lippmann, Lawrence and Fegler, upon whose opinion and observation you can rely with reasonable safety. All of these people are in a position where they cannot be told what to do.

"I DO NOT CHOOSE TO RUN"

Prexy Roosevelt's answer to the reporter who asked him point blank about the matter of a third term was wonderful. The prexy told the reporter to get a dunce cap and stand in the corner with his back to the crowd, and also noted that the weather has hot.

You can make almost anything out of that.

AND AFTER

The main problem concerning the president today, however, is what did he and Mr. DuPont say to each other just before the wedding?

THE WALL OF MARRIAGE

Some plants can never alone. The fair Rose vine I train upon the garden wall. Without support, to the hard ground would fall. And spill its fragrance there.

Upon the wall of marriage you belong. Then you will blossom in the smiling sun. And find new happiness as swift years run. But may the wall be strong!

Appleton Rotarians will attend an Inter-city Rotary picnic at High Cliff Wednesday afternoon and evening. The picnic is sponsored by the Kaukauna Rotary club, and members from Neenah, Menasha, Appleton and Kaukauna will attend. E. H. TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Wednesday, July 3, 1912

A quiet Fourth of July was in prospect for Appleton the following day inasmuch as there were no celebrations of a citywide nature being planned.

A call had been issued for a mass meeting of Outagamie county Democrats the following Saturday to select delegates to the state convention in Milwaukee on July 11.

A score of delegates were in Appleton that day for the convention of the Wisconsin Commercial Educators' association at Bushey's Business college.

The Appleton team in the State league defeated Rockford, 12 to 2, the previous day and still led for the leap top spot with 37 wins and 18 losses. Oshkosh was in second place with 33 wins and 23 losses.

during the time of low water. Were the Queen Mary able to get here, there is now enough water in the deep channel opposite the Public Landing for her to anchor in safety.

This present high-water-in-pioneer days they called it "a fresh"—does a river-cleansing job. We persist in polluting the river, but the heavy rains, which have swollen it and raised its level, are purifying it. It is nature's way of helping to undo the things we have done. Yet, heroic as is the method nature employs to help us, nothing she can do will avail unless we stop making the Ohio a catch basin for the waste of a dozen cities, for the acid refuse of a dozen great steel plants, and for many other undesirable additions.

There is one great fact which Cincinnati and every other city on the banks of the Ohio should never forget: that is, the river is essential to our existence. Without it we could not live. Its supply of never-failing water makes possible our communal life. Were we to attempt to go back to the old system of wells and cisterns there would not be enough water here to furnish the decent necessities of civilized life. That is the compelling reason why our effort to make the Ohio pure and sweet, as it was before the coming of the white man, must never cease until they are crowned with success.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY M. D.
 Noted Physician and Author

THE MAIN STUDIO AT ODD HOUSE

In earlier talks it was intimated that Odd House will have no dining room but instead the space old-fashioned folk gave to the dining room will be used for a library. For ordinary breakfasts, lunches, snacks or square meals a pleasant section in one end of the kitchen, with an outlook on garden, patio, lawn or trees will be used, and for more formal dinner parties the library will be ideal.

Odd House is to have two studios. The main studio will be devoted exclusively to culinary art and art criticism and appreciation. It will have large windows extending to the height of the ceiling, on one or if possible on two sides. These windows will all open fully and be fitted with screen that open by rolling up like ordinary window shades on rollers. And the artificial lighting of the culinary studio will be as carefully planned as that of any other room in the house.

The ceiling and upper half of the walls will be finished in white, cream, ivory or light yellow, washable. Indirect lighting will be used throughout Odd House, save places where concentration of light intensity is desired. The glare of visible lights in any room is repellent, whether we realize it or not. On the other hand, the soft, natural radiance of the room illuminated from invisible sources is always pleasing and attractive. I am reminded of this by the show window of one merchant on a street ablaze with flashing electric and neon signs. This window literally stops the passing crowd—not a light visible, the display indirectly illuminated is indeed soothing to tired eyes.

Attention will be given to the inflow of fresh air thru a screened duct from outside to a grating under or back of the cooking range, the inlet being larger in diameter than the outlet vent.

I only sufficient room for the artist to work with convenience will be planned in the culinary studio. The less space without cramping the better.

Culinary implements and ware will be copper, iron, aluminum, wood, enamel, stainless steel, tin, china, glazed earthen ware and some white metal finements. At Odd House we do not take seriously the fears some cullible customers have about the use of certain of these kitchen wares.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Soundness of Sleep
 When I sleep the soundest or best? I mean is there any basis for the common idea of "beauty sleep" before midnight? (S. L.)

Answer—The deepest sleep occurs about an hour after one goes to sleep. Sleep is more shallow from the second to the third hour. From the fourth to the fifth hour it is still more shallow. Then follows another period of deeper sleep—at about the 6th to 7th hour in adults, the 8th to 10th hour in children. It makes no difference whether the sleep is before or after midnight, day-time or night-time rest, other than being cool.

Sulphur and Cream of Tartar
 I have been taking sulphur and cream of tartar for several weeks, but it does not seem to remove the blackheads and pimples. (M. D.)

Answer—Why should it? Sulphur is a mild laxative. Cream of tartar is a mild diuretic. Send stamped envelope bearing your address, for monograph on what ails you.

Fish
 Is canned fish such as salmon, crab, tuna, a proper substitute for meat, particularly when meat is used only once a day? (Mrs. G. F. B.)

Answer—Fresh fish or shellfish is a good staple to use in place of meat one or more days a week. Canned salmon is a good source of iodine and it is also a good source of Vitamin D. Aside from the palatable pleasing qualities of fish, sea fish and shell fish, such food from the sea particularly is desirable in the diet for the iodine content. Most people living inland, especially at elevations, do not get enough iodine. (Copyright, 1937)

Your Birthday

"CANCER"

If July 1 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. until noon, from 2 to 4 p. m., and from 6 to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 to 10 a. m., from 4 to 6 p. m., and from 6 to 10 p. m.

Opposition without justification will cause many a well-laid plan to fail this day, so do not let a spirit of contrariness dominate your actions. Be careful that outside interests do not absorb too much of your time, for they may be a disturbing influence in domestic and commercial circles. Readjustments of personal affairs are liable to occur, with many advantages gained. Friendly relationships are likely to be established, and prove very helpful in the near future. Frankness is apt to be an outstanding characteristic, especially in your social contacts. Professional jealousy can be a dangerous factor on this day's affairs, so it should not be indulged in, if trouble is to be avoided, nor ought it to be tolerated if there is the slightest manifestation of it. Married and engaged couples, as well as those contemplating a matrimony must be careful not to place a wrong interpretation on anything that is said or done this day, for that is one of the mediums through which misunderstandings are liable to occur.

If a woman born on July 1 is your birthday, you probably allow very few things to disturb your mental equilibrium, or to make you nervous. You are apparently very sentimental, possibly poetically inclined, and ought to be facile with the artist's brush or writer's pen. With a little determination you will be able to accomplish whatever you undertake. A vast amount of good fortune seems destined to befall you, providing you do not permit discouragement to act as a barrier. As an author, newspaper woman, real estate or insurance agent, actress or dietician your chances for success are unlimited. Nearly everyone born on this date marries wisely and well.

The child born on July 1, as a rule, during adolescence is an impulsive, lovable youngster, easily governed, and blessed with an exceptionally happy disposition. A promising future seems to assure this youngster a very easy life, particularly free from worries.

If a man and July 1 is your natal day, you are apt to be very generous, conscientious and industrious. Animals are most likely instinctively drawn to you, as the chances are you love dogs, horses and household pets. Your chances for success are best in journalism, printing, publishing, banking, writing, painting, inventing or selling.

Successful People Born on July 1:

 Albert B. Hall, historian.
 Harry L. Koopman, poet.
 Gideon Welles, editor and politician.

WAR DOESN'T WORRY STORK

Bilbao — The roar of guns in Spain's civil war didn't bother a stork in the small town of Orduna. It perched indifferently in its nest atop a church tower.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Thousands of bright-eyed graduates are being cut loose from the colleges these days to go out and remake the nation, and they might just as well know there are vastly greater opportunities now for first hand remaking than ever before.

Never in the nation's history, except for the World War period, were so many jobs open in this field.

Social security has just started and the Wagner labor act, recently upheld by the Supreme court, hasn't really hit its stride yet in opening jobs. TVA is helping remake the south but the new Norris bill, likely to be enacted in some form next session, will remake six other sections in similar fashion.

Enactment of the wage-hour bill (when and if it should create scads of jobs, for the federal government must keep its eyes open when it begins imposing wage and hour conditions on private industry. And federal eyes come high—$2,000 to $10,000 an eye per year, depending on how much the eye is expected to see.

Growing Industry

There are hazards in federal employment, but then insurance companies and banks can fire you, too, the principal difference being they can let you have it any time; instead of every two or four years.

It is always smart to get in with a growing industry, and no industry except airplane making is growing faster than the federal government. The pay isn't so hot over a period of years but the chances are you will get to the "own-your-ear" stage on a federal job long before you would as a clerk in your uncle's hardware store.

If you are the rabbit type and don't like the hazards of the election turnover, the civil service awaits you. The pay is lower as a rule (although the top brackets hold jobs at $6,000 and up) and you become part of a card-index system instead of a person.

Rabbit

If you are the wolf type and have a little learning in the law or a background of social welfare learning, congress is open to you after a time, and with even fewer years experience there will be good pay available on federal agencies.

Even rabbits get into congress. We know a man who served 22 years in the house and his proud-est boast, when they finally caught up with him, was that he never took a positive stand on any issue. He lost his $10,000 a year seat but there is a veritable graveyard of commission posts for fugitive rabbits, and he got one.

Look into this thing, fellah, and go see a big guy who knows your congressman.

Versatility Features Bridge's Slam Bidding

DIRECT SLAM BIDDING
(Copyright 1937, By Ely Culbertson)

Perhaps the most fascinating feature of slam bidding is the fact that here versatility rather than pure orthodoxy comes into its own. (The further fact that successful slam bidding is highly beneficial to one's pocket book is, of course, merely incidental.)

Obviously, the first prerequisite of this department of bidding is accurate card valuation. But the correct route to a slam is at least as important as the knowledge that the combined values of two hands fall into the slam zone. In the Culbertson system, asking bids, the four-five no trump convention, and the five no trump grand slam force constitute three—sometimes separate, sometimes integrated—devices that work almost automatically. There never has been any intention on my part, however, to confine all slam bidding to hands into which these devices fit smoothly. Many hands occur in which only direct methods should be employed. The hand described below falls squarely into this category.

North dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

♥ 8 6 6
♦ K Q J 10 3 2
♣ K 9 7

The bidding:
North East South West
1 heart 1 spade 2 diamonds 2 spades
6 diamonds Pass Pass Pass

North's bidding is particularly worthy of comment. When South overcalled East's spade bid with two diamonds, it was immediately apparent to North that a slam was either cold or the next thing to it. The trump situation seemed excellent. Certainly, no more than one spade trick could be lost. This spade trick, however, was not considered. On that point North saw every reason for optimism. First, there was the chance that South might hold a singleton heart; second, that he might have the king; third, that if he had two or three small hearts the finesse would work. There was a fourth chance even more persuasive, namely, that on the highly confident jump bid to six diamonds by North, the opening lead (West) would not dream of opening a heart and, hence, that a spade trick could be established in the North hand for a heart discard before the heart ace was attacked. Most important of all from North's point of view, however, was the realization that the slam must be bid by direct methods or not at all, since on his particular freak, no slam device was comfortably available. That North's calculation of the many chances for the contract was accurate was attested by the actual development of the hand, upon the opening lead of the club ace by West.

Dummy ruffed and led a low diamond to the king. Declarer cashed the club king, discarding a heart from dummy, and ruffed his last club with the trump ace. Declarer had noted the fall of the trump eight from West and felt that there was a good chance of its being a singleton. At any rate, since dummy's now was down to one trump a perfect strip could not be executed.

Coiffures Come Up

Coiffures have come up in the world, banishing the curls at the nape of the neck and instituting a more clean-cut line, which coiffures regard as a coming contour for fall. Suntan Robs Some Girls Of Glamour

BY ELSIE PIERCE

AS I told you yesterday, it's pretty much a matter of personal preference, this question of whether to tan or not, with fashion favoring very light tan variety if any tan, at all.

There are those who can carry the tan off beautifully and for them the mellow tans are lovely indeed. There are others to whom tan is a liability rather than an asset, it is aging, it is ugly, or it robs them of a certain amount of romantic glamour.

We cannot deny the fact that the sun dries the natural oils of the skin, it makes the skin look coarse and thick and parched; it adds wrinkles and emphasizes lines. Which means that anyone who has signs of age to fear has suntan to fear too. As a general rule I would say that for women over thirty-five or forty too prolonged tanning is hardly desirable.

The delicate, fragile, dry skin suffers most from exposure to the sun and if a coat of tan is to be acquired by this type, it should be done in slow, studied doses.

The glamour of white as white can be skin against dark hair and flashing black or dark brown eyes is lost when the skin takes on a dark tone. The contrast of hair and skin makes for individuality and distinction, should be preserved at all costs. The cost? Plenty of sunburn preventives, large parasol, large hat shading the face.

The round face looks pounds rounder with a coat of tan because suntan always makes cheeks look puffed. Eyes look smaller too when the surrounding skin is tan—so if you are playing up the orbs remember that.

For the thin, long face, suntan is fine. For the brunette of rich coloring, white teeth, clear eyes, suntan should be very becoming. When one is young, one does not have to fear the aging damage of suntan.

Protection Needed

And if you are tanning, remember that protection is needed nevertheless—not against the tanning rays of the sun but the harmful, burning actinic rays. Take your suntanning slowly, a few minutes a day until the skin's resistance is built up. A half hour at a stretch is more than enough for any dyed-in-the-wool, or bronzed by the sun skin. If you don't use plenty of sun-proofing creams, something emollient, and such you may find that the skin becomes dry, chapped, drawn, shriveled long before it browns, and then there's less chance of it turning an even, lovely tan. You may find that the skin cracks and peels before it is achieved. Be sure to oil and cream the way and remember that slowly, surely is the safest course to bronzed beauty.

the most successful women are those who have done this and who are as feminine as a ruffled petticoat.

Next, bear in mind that the great demand is always for homely things. "People can do without poetry, music and art, but they can't do without cooks," as the poet said long ago. There is a limited demand for social secretaries and art critics and book reviewers and airplane hostesses, and so on, but there never will be enough stenographers who know how to spell to go around. And nothing can keep the supersaleswoman from getting to be the head of the department. People will always want good food, comfortable homes and hats that have style to them instead of being mere lids. And the women who keep good boarding houses and run hotels where the guests brag about the "eats" will always be in the money.

And finally, girls, in choosing a career don't overlook matrimony. After all that is always a woman's best bet.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

BY EMILY POST

GIFTS AND INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Post: I have received a wedding announcement of a type which I have never before seen. It announces a marriage at a future date instead of at one just passed. There is not a word on it about being invited to anything and of course I shall not go to the wedding. But is such an announcement treated differently than the ordinary form in the matter of sending presents?

Answer: Such an announcement is absolutely incorrect since it isn't possible to announce an event that has not yet taken place. Or, if it were worded as a notice of contemplated marriage, it would still be incorrect since a notice in advance should be an invitation. If you are an intimate friend of either the bride or groom, and would like to send a present, it would be proper of course to send one. But the announcement itself carries no obligation.

Dear Mrs. Post: When sending a bon voyage gift to a bride, would it seem more polite to address it to Mr. and Mrs.?

Answer: If you send a basket of fruit or books or anything for the use of both, then it would be all right to send it to Mr. and Mrs. If you are sending flowers or something else for the bride's use alone, then it should be addressed to the bride.

Dear Mrs. Post: I have received an invitation to a student's piano recital sent by their teacher. Among the young people taking part in the program is a friend's child, so I imagine that is why I have been invited. There is no answer requested. What acknowledgment is one supposed to make of such an invitation, especially of not able to go?

Answer: Whenever any one in whom you are at all interested takes part either in a musical or theatrical performance it is well to remember that it adds greatly to the effect of her success—and to her pleasure—to have flowers sent to her. Therefore, if you can send the child some flowers, either tied like a bouquet or put in a basket, I am sure it would please the child and her mother too.

Dear Mrs. Post: Today I received a formally engraved invitation from a woman's club inviting me to a dinner which they are giving for some celebrity. The forwarding was that of any other formal invitation, except that at the bottom of the page directions were included about sending a check for the dinner reservation. How is the answer to such an invitation worded?

Answer: If you want to go to the dinner, then send your check, or if you do not want to go, do nothing further.

Girl Should Pick Career That Belongs to Her Sex

BY DOROTHY DIX

A group of girls who have just "finished their education," as the phrase goes, ask my advice concerning the choice of a career, and whether it will be better for them to go into business or take up a profession.

I know just how bewildered the poor little sweet-girl-graduate feels as she stands where the brook and the river meet, with a diploma under her arm, wondering where she will go from here. She is all set for the top flights and ready to go in for science in a big way, or be a feminine Napoleon of finance, or write a best seller, or to be a new star blazing across the Hollywood sky. But in this plethora of opportunities she doesn't know which to pick out. It is the embarrassment of riches.

I wish I could tell her which road to follow, low, sure of finding fame and fortune at the end of it, but no one is wise enough to do that. Success depends upon so many different things. Principally, of course, upon her character, her health, her ambition, her will to succeed. But it depends also upon the breaks she gets and how heavily she is burdened down with family responsibilities. No pack horse can win the Derby.

If a girl has a real genuine vocation, she does not choose it. It chooses her and she sings or acts or dances or is a stylist because Nature made her so. And if she has no special bent in any particular direction, but just good, plain, ordinary intelligence, it does not matter what occupation she goes into. She will succeed, or fail, according to how much of her heart and back she puts into her work.

While I cannot tell a girl what career to choose, there are two or three homely facts that I would like to call to her mind that she often overlooks.

The first is not to overvalue herself and attempt to do things that are beyond her ability. Because she would like to be prima donna or a cinema star or a famous writer does not give her the looks or the talent to be one. There are no more pitiful tragedies than those of the girls who have toiled and slaved and wasted their youth and impoverished their parents trying to develop a parlor voice into a grand opera one, or vainly attempting to crash the doors of motion-picture studios, or who have starved writing the stories that always come back to them from the publishers.

So I urge every girl to take a good honest stock of her own abilities before she picks out an occupation and then, when she has decided upon what she likes to do best, and what she can do best, to develop her talent to the utmost. There is always a place at the top. There is always a demand and good pay for expert work. The reason women's work is so generally ill-paid is because it is so often such poor work. The women who are top-liners get fat pay envelopes.

I would also recommend girls to pick out some line of work that belongs traditionally to their sex and for which they have an inherited aptitude. I know there are a few women who are steeplejacks and roustabouts and longshoremen, but the best of these aren't as good as a second-class man in that line would be. When God made the two sexes, HE intended each one to stick to its own knitting, and you will find that

Making Air Travel Safer

III—SPECIAL DANGERS

Stronger wings have helped make air travel safer. Fifteen years ago, accidents were caused every now and then by the breaking of airplane wings. Nowadays it is rare for anything to go wrong with a wing.

There is work left to be done, however. Air travel ought to become the safest, as well as the quickest, way of getting from place to place. We are far from that goal today.

The autogyro has not yet come so far toward the front as I have been hoping. It can make a "straight-down" landing, and this takes away most of the danger in coming down. Another fact is that it doesn't need nearly so much space to land as the ordinary plane.

During recent months, several American passenger planes have struck the tops of mountains. Fog, storms and other causes have kept pilots from clearing the peaks. As a result, there have been serious accidents.

There is something of keen interest to the public about airplane accidents. That is why news of a crash is telegraphed fast and wide, and printed in newspapers. For this reason, many persons have come to believe that airplane travel is far more dangerous than it really is.

Looking back over the past several years, we find that scheduled airplanes have made a rather good safety record, but the thing to do is to make it much better. The very fact that airplane crash news travels fast is a special reason for more care to be used in keeping accidents from happening. Safety is more important than speed.

Uncle Ray

A crash in which no one was killed. Of all airplane accidents, about one-tenth are due to defects in the plane itself. The rest are caused chiefly by collisions with trees, mountains or other objects, and by mishaps during the take-off or in landing.

About one-quarter of all fatal accidents in recent years have been due to forced landings. There are times when the pilots cannot choose the place where they will go down. Lack of fuel, ice on the wings, fog, storms and other things may force them to land wherever possible, and the landing may take place in a forest, on the side of a hill or mountain in a lake, or on some very rough field.

In addition to forced landing accidents, there have been some accidents during landings at regular airports during the past eight years. Most of these crashes have been of planes not in use for regular passenger transport.

Aviation companies have done some excellent work in bringing about safer landings. Airports have been enlarged, and aviators have been trained in bringing planes to the ground.

There is work left to be done, however. Air travel ought to become the safest, as well as the quickest, way of getting from place to place. We are far from that goal today.

Children Will Not Obey Parent's Selfish Demands

BY ANGELO PATRI

After children reach the stage where they begin to seek causes and reasons for things one has to meet them half way and give them reasons for regulations and rules. "What for?" must be answered honestly or obedience will be observed with lessening cheerfulness and sureness. If a parent feels outraged by the thought that he ought to give reasons for his requests and demands he can know by that sign that he needs to ask himself for these reasons.

Giving orders because observance of them will make life a bit more comfortable is not a good reason. It soon wears out its efficacy. Children will not obey selfish demands beyond what they can help. "Get home by ten o'clock," says father. He may be animated by deep interest in the young son's health and he may be guarding his own comfort. To be sure that comfort is wrapped in his desire for the safety of his son, but he must know that safety is not one of youth's ambitions, and accept the risks and discomforts that accompany growth.

"And remember, Bobby, come straight home from school. I want you here at twenty minutes past three. No later."

Now twenty minutes past three means that Bobby runs all the way home, starts at the school gate at dismissal and never lets up until he arrives panting at the door.

Naturally he wants to know why this demand upon his energy and desires. He wants to feel a little weight as fast as you ought if you are to play ball next season. I'll have the cookies ready, that would seem reasonable and right, probably, and he would be inclined to get home promptly.

This principle of reason in obedience follows all through our association with children. Give them something to go on when asking for cooperation and obedience. Give them reason a chance to judge so that they do not feel themselves bound and fettered by authority. Make obedience and cooperation profitable for them in all possible ways. With little children material ways must be used. With adolescents some spiritual rewards are possible.

It is not enough to issue commands from the heights. Not if one really wants the child to do what is right and best for him to do. Give him the reason. Give him something he feels worth his paying for in terms of self-control and self-discipline, and he will agree. Obedience that does not count on aid from the child's intelligence will not help him past the infant stage. Tell them "what for."

Manitowoc Woman Is Medalist With Low Score of 85

PLAYING the last nine holes in 41, even par for women, Miss Ruth Plumb, Manitowoc, repeated as medalist of the annual tournament of the Northeastern Wisconsin Women's Golf association, yesterday at Butte des Morts. She turned in an 85 for the 18 holes, a 44 on the first nine being three over women's par.

A Butte des Morts member, Mrs. George Theiss, was next low with an 87 from 9-hole scores of 43 and 44, and she will carry the club's hopes in match play which started today.

Miss Plumb's card:

Approximately 70 women competed in the qualifying round battling a cold, strong northwest wind which was a far cry from the hot blasts that swept the North Shore course at last year's tournament.

Wide Open Battle

The championship this year appears to be a wide open battle for Mrs. Karl Luetke, the defending champion, representing Tusculum at Green Lake, is not competing. Last year she won her third title and although she watched the play yesterday she held to a resolution made last season, not to compete again this season.

Championship flight pairings put Miss Plumb in the upper bracket and Mrs. Theiss in the lower bracket. Miss Plumb drew as her first opponent, Mrs. A. D. Blumenshine of Green Lake, who had a 91, and who may offer keen competition. There are many women who feel Mrs. Blumenshine can win the championship if she decides to bear down for they well remember her excellent play last year at North Shore.

First Opponent

Mrs. Theiss has drawn Mrs. C. B. Rich, Green Bay, as her first opponent. Mrs. Rich turned in a 95 for the qualifying round. She has competed in several tournaments in the south last winter and this spring.

The upper bracket also shows Miss M. A. Wall, Menominee, Mich., playing Mrs. Leo Gullickson, Stevens Point, and there are those who are certain Miss Wall will be a semi-finalist and perhaps a finalist. She hits a terrific ball off the tee but is bothered by putting. She had a 90 and the Stevens Point woman a 98.

The other championship match tomorrow will send Mrs. E. Foulk of Butte des Morts, who shot a 90, against Mrs. Gordon Wolfe, Chilton, who shot a 99.

Today's schedule called for nine holes of match play this morning and eighteen this afternoon with the survivors battling for the championship over eighteen holes Thursday.

Pairings in flights other than the championship flight follow:

First Flight

Mrs. H. O. Eicken, Green Bay, versus Mrs. Joseph Deuster, Green Bay.

Mrs. W. F. Finch, Neenah, versus Mrs. A. Brandt, Butte des Morts.

Mrs. E. L. Kotla, Stevens Point, versus Mrs. William Buchanan, North Shore.

Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., Ethel DuPont Exchange Vows in Delaware Church

BY BETH CAMPBELL
Wilmington, Del.—The story-book romance of Ethel DuPont and Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., moved swiftly today to its climax in the flower-banked chancel of a simple country church.

The wedding ceremony which unites the two members of two of the country's most famous and powerful families was scheduled for this afternoon (3 o'clock, Appleton time.)

The president, with Mrs. Roosevelt, arrived from Washington and went first on a round of social functions and then to rustic Christ church of Christiana hundred to see their son wed.

The church, a DuPont place of worship for three-quarters of cen-tury, stands on DuPont property in a countryside covered with estates of members of that family. That area, just north of Wilmington, was the scene of all today's events.

State police guarded the strategic highways and lanes and a detach-ment of regular army soldiers mov-ing in from Ft. DuPont to keep watchful eyes on the scene while the present was about.

The couple began the day already rehearsed in their lines and well-showered with attentions that ranged from hundreds of simple gifts to elaborate parties, the last of which was last night. Their schedule included:

A bridal party luncheon at which all members of the immediate families would meet for the first time. This was at the home of a bridesmaid, Mrs. C. Porter Schutt, near the estate of Ethel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene DuPont.

The brief single-ring Episcopal wedding ceremony, with 342 guests invited. This was to be performed by the rector, the Rev. Frederick Ashton, who christened Ethel, and by the Rev. Endicott Penabody of Groton school, Mass., who has mar-ried two other Roosevelt sons, Elliot and James.

A reception for 1,300 guests by the bride's parents, and last, the dash for a mysterious honeymoon destination, said variously to be in Europe, at a friend's summer home, or possibly aboard a yacht.

Among the gifts was a huge sil-ver platter, inscribed on the bot-tom, "to Ethel DuPont from the Cabinet," a nest of four tables in rich wood, sparkling Steuben ware, rich linens, heavy old candlesticks and lovely china.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt sent the flat-silver—all possible pieces—as they have done for each of their children.

President Roosevelt arrived at Montchanin railway station at 11:45 a. m., eastern standard time, today to attend the wedding.

Senate Adjourns After Clashes Until Tomorrow

Madison—The senate adjourned at 11 o'clock a. m. today until tomorrow morning after reaching final action on only one bill in two hours.

Without debate the senators approved a change in state laws to permit acceptance of federal highway aid.

Once the solons came close to a vote on the administration's new judicial retirement bill, but a call of the house prevented further action on the matter.

Twice during the morning senators threatened to attempt filibusters until the time for final adjournment Friday noon.

Senator Roland Kanneberg (P), Wisconsin's first made the threat when the senate declined to take up one of his bills. His statement brought from Senator Joseph Clancy (D), Racine, the reply "I want to tell the senator from the Twenty-fifth (Kanneberg) that he's the biggest overgrown baby I have met in my 47 years on this earth."

Later Senator Philip Nelson (R), Wausau, repeated the threat when Senator Earl Leverich (P), Sparta, blocked action on a measure favored by Nelson. Leverich's move for a call of the house resulted from an objection by Kanneberg to taking up the Leverich resolution praising the late Senator Howard Teasdale of Sparta.

So it went until finally the senate adjourned.

The senators had one hearty laugh during the morning when Senator E. M. Rowlands (P), Cambria, chairman of the committee on committees, reported that group "has selected Senators Nelson and Rowlands" as the senate contingent in the legislative representation at the 1929 world's fair in New York. Nelson also is a member of the committee.

Bicycle Races Curtailed By Threatening Weather

Threatening skies forced curtailment of the first annual bicycle races at the Wilson Junior High school athletic field yesterday afternoon and were blamed for the low entry of about 100 children.

The meet for cycle enthusiasts was sponsored by the Young Men's Christian association as an initial step toward organization of a bicycle club in Appleton and was under the direction of C. C. Bailey, boys' work secretary. Carl H. Radtke, sergeant of the traffic division of the Appleton Police department, read and explained the city ordinance governing bicycle riding.

Approximately $80,000 is owed to the county for delinquent real estate taxes on the property. The city of Kaukauna also has money coming from the company for delinquent personal property taxes.

The projected bicycle club would stress safe bicycle riding. Club members would be required to equip their vehicles with proper devices for night riding and a set of safety rules would be devised. It is planned to take 1-day bicycle hikes to scenic spots in the Fox river under experienced direction.

Outdoor Show to be Given At 8 O'clock Tonight In Pierce Park

The Wisconsin Development authority, which only recently received final legislative approval after months of consideration, the biennial tax bill, which aroused less opposition enthusiasm which might have been expected, the judicial retirement bill, which was defeated with the help of the governor's own legislative lieutenants, and many minor proposals.

In the Northwestern Wisconsin area, the administration's most vociferous opponents have been Albert D. Shimpke (D), Alcona, Frank N. Graess (R), Sturgeon Bay, Mark S. Catlin (R), of Appleton, and William Rohan (D), Kaukauna.

They fought hard, but futilely to stop the budget bill, the development authority bill, and the labor relations act, offered numerous amendments to effect what they considered would be improvements in imperfectly drafted measures, but were overwhelmed by the victorious Progressive machine in the assembly.

Valley Members Mostly Opposed To Administration

Labor Relations and Budget Bills Were Fought

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—With adjournment of the legislature for the summer a matter of some distant, Fox River Valley members today looked back on their record on important measures and found that they have been almost unvarying opponents of administration program.

On all the important measures of the LaFollette state program, Valley members lined up unanimously in opposition, including the labor relations act, which was passed, though not without one of the best fights of the session, the Wisconsin Development authority, which only recently received final legislative approval after months of consideration, the biennial tax bill, which aroused less opposition enthusiasm which might have been expected, the judicial retirement bill, which was defeated with the help of the governor's own legislative lieutenants, and many minor proposals.

Deficit at 6-Year Low but U.S. Debt Sets New Record

Spending Smaller Than Last Year: Billion Dollars in Treasury

Washington—(AP)—The treasury rounded out another fiscal year today with the smallest deficit in six years, the biggest debt in history and $1,000,000,000 in its cash box.

Government income was the largest since 1921 and spending was reduced from last year.

President Roosevelt made public at his press conference late yesterday a budget bureau report showing revenues would top his revised estimate by $50,000,000 to $50,000,000.

Spending for ordinary government purposes, it said, will exceed the forecast by $75,000,000.

The $75,000,000 figure, Mr. Roosevelt said, included $40,000,000 which the treasury deposited in the social security old age reserve fund this month. It had been intended originally to make the deposit in the next fiscal year.

Including emergency and relief outlays in the spending estimate, treasury statistics showed that expenditures went $137,000,000 over the president's revised estimate on June 26. The computation did not include $103,000,000 spent to pay off government debt.

The $137,000,000 excess over the estimate will increase further when spending is computed through June 30.

Mr. Roosevelt estimated the public debt would stand at about $36,400,000,000 at midnight tonight. This would be the largest June 30 figure ever recorded, but would be $233,000,000 under the all-time peak of June 15.

The president said the debt has remained virtually stationary since last December, except for borrowing to finance treasury gold acquisitions and payments into government life insurance, old age and unemployment insurance reserve funds.

Borrowing for gold purchases, he said, has totaled $1,050,000,000. He asserted this borrowing put a corresponding sum of gold assets in the treasury.

This and the other listed items, he said, brought a debt increase of $2,000,000,000 on paper.

Revenue Increases

Treasury reports through June 26 listed revenues this year at $5,248,576,000, or about 26 per cent over last year.

Roosevelt forecast in his original January budget a 65 per cent climb in income tax collections. March receipts fell below forecasts, however, leading the president to revise budget estimates and prompting the treasury to investigate tax returns.

In response to a message from Mr. Roosevelt, congress began its inquiry into alleged tax evasion and avoidance.

Expenditures through June 26 totaled $2,019,891.00, or 9 per cent under last year. Excluding debt retirement, the deficit on June 26 was $2,668,774.00, or $111,000.00 over the revised estimate.

Badger Bankers Fight Interstate Branch Proposal

Plan Called 'Inimical to Best Interests of People of Wisconsin'

Milwaukee—(AP)—Opposition to interstate branch banking was expressed today by the Wisconsin Bankers' association in a resolution which described it as "inimical to the best interest of the people of Wisconsin."

The resolution, which disapproved of the McCauley bill now in congress providing for interstate branch banking, was adopted by the bankers at their last convention session yesterday aboard the steamship Secandebec. The boat docked here yesterday after a three-day convention-cruise on Georgian bay, Lake Huron and Lake Michigan.

Other resolutions urged a national educational and advertising program to promote public relations, opposed any effort toward payment of interest on public funds or any form of demand deposits, and disapproved of the Patman bill in congress which would change ownership of stock in the federal reserve banks from the member banks to the federal government.

The proposed stock ownership transfer, the bankers said, would further subject operations of the federal reserve system to political influences.

Steel Industry Sets Record in Upward Swing

Higher Farm and Industrial Purchasing Power Responsible

BY THOMAS E. FLANAGAN
New York — (A) — Trade and industry rolled along at a brisk clip in the first six months of 1937.

Pace-setter was the steel industry, speeding up to the highest peace-time top on record.

This energy, business observers said, reflected the underlying momentum of recovery.

It owed its strength to higher farm and industrial purchasing power. It sluiced its fuel in through the channels of expanding production of electric power, motors and a host of other manufactured products. And it bore witness to long-deferred demand for durable goods and to freer consumer spending born of increased confidence.

Prices Drop
Progress during the first half of the period was scored despite floods in the Ohio river basin and strikes in the motor and other industries.

During the second half, spreading of boom psychology was checked by declining commodity prices and by strikes in the steel industry paralyzing so-called independent companies.

Although the strikes cut the weekly output, most consumers were well stocked with steel.

The decline in commodity prices was welcomed in most business circles. It reflected an attack of speculative indigestion, most acutely felt in London.

Soaring commodity prices in the first part of the year had given business men cause for concern. As quotations climbed, prices of various manufactured finished goods were marked up—notably shoes, clothing and automobile tires.

This trend, it was feared, would induce consumer resistance if long continued. But wages of industrial workers and the cash return to farmers were higher and apparently able to offset in many instances the burden of higher retail prices.

Retail Sales Up

For the six months just closed, retail chain and department stores reported sales well ahead of 1936 in both volume and dollars. The turnover after Easter was regarded as disappointing, but post-Decoration day sales jumped smartly. That the public was in a buying mood was shown by the spurt of motor sales to record highs as the selling season got under way.

Industrial statistics made cheerful reading during the period. Steel operations ran up the spring peak of 923 per cent of capacity in the week of April 17.

Motor output hit a high of around 142,000 units in the week of May 15, then slackened with the approach of summer.

Electric power production held well above the 2,000,000,000 kilowatt-hour weekly mark throughout the period, but the margin of gain over 1936 was reduced during the spring.

Freight carloadings pushed up to around 800,000 cars a week and gave promise of a fall high of approximately 900,000, traffic experts said.

More Houses Built

The piling up of orders along the manufacturing and industrial front, together with the accumulation of improved profits, spurred construction. Of prime importance, experts said, was the faster movement of private dollars into engineering construction projects.

The pulse of home building quickened, absorbing workers and raw materials. High hopes had been pinned on this field, a sign of revival brought predictions of a major contribution to general business.

But residential building in the spring fell short of estimates, perhaps because of higher building material costs and wages.

HOUSING SHORTAGE

Washington — (A) — A housing shortage is forcing respectable families in many large cities to occupy quarters "unfit for decent habitation," says Stewart McDonald, federal housing administrator. Residential vacancies, he says, which reached a peak in 1933, have steadily diminished during the last three years.

RUDYARD KIPLING'S MASTERPIECE BROUGHT TO SCREEN

Of the masterpieces written by Rudyard Kipling, "Captains Courageous," the stirring tale of the Gloucester fishermen who pick up a boy who has fallen from an ocean liner and change the course of his whole life, is conceded the most widely known and the greatest. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has given its entire resources to the ambitious filmization of the Kipling epic and bring it to the screen with an all-star cast headed by Spencer Tracy, Freddie Bartholomew, Lionel Barrymore, Melvyn Douglas, Charley Grapewin and Mickey Rooney. The production will be presented at regular admission prices for five days starting Friday at the Rio theater.

Progressives Lead in Introducing New Bills

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—As members eagerly discuss adjournment, and as the trickle of new bills into the legislative hopper ceases and examination of the official bulletin of proceedings, containing all of the 1400 odd proposals of the last five months shows a startling variance in the productive capacity of the members of the two houses.

There are members in each house who have refrained from introducing any bills, while there are others in both who have been staging a bill marathon since the session began, first honors going to John W. Grobschmidt, Farmer-Labor member from Milwaukee, who entered the home stretch this week with a total of 44 different measures.

Significantly, those legislators who lead in the number of bills and resolutions introduced are almost without exception members of the Progressive party. Perhaps the reason is—some Republicans and Democrats do not doubt it—that important legislation sponsored by anti-administration members has no chance of passage when there are so many Progressives anxious to have their names attached to important laws.

Three Leaders
Whatever the reason, the three biggest bill producers in the lower house are Progressives. Grobschmidt, speaker Paul Alfonsi with 35, and Assemblyman Andrew Biehl, erstwhile Milwaukee Socialist and now a Progressive floor leader, with 34, a good share of their important enough to consume many a spring afternoon in spirited hearings, and many of the most important of which have been killed because they were too liberal even for Wisconsin's highly liberal legislature.

High honors for his party in the assembly are almost certain to go to Assemblyman Martin Franzkowski, who earlier in the session kept up a furious pace. Day after day he visited the legislative reference library to draft measures to combat social or economic problems of his harassed constituents. Perhaps his most notable offerings are the anti-pin ball bill, which stirred orators to the depths several months ago, and another to reimburse the death of hanging in the state for kidnappers. Franzkowski's legislative batting average is low. He has not been able to convince his Progressive mates of the merits of his bills.

In the senate a Progressive again holds the lead in the number of bills introduced. He is Senator Alvan J. Busby of West Allis, also a Farmer-Labor member, who to date has introduced 30 different measures.

A quiet man with little aptitude for leadership in senate debate, Busby has introduced many bills for the administration and trusts Progressive floorleaders to guide them through the legislative paces.

See Chance for City to Secure Lower Fire Rates

Bureau Issues Recommendations for Neenah to Follow

Neenah—Advancement from sixth to fifth class on fire insurance rates is possible for the city of Neenah, provided that more equipment and men are added to the fire department, according to H. S. Zemlock, city clerk.

The city clerk wrote to the Fire Insurance Rating bureau and a complete report was received this morning giving recommendations by which the insurance could be reduced.

If the changes are made, the report stated, insurance rates on unsprinkled mercantile establishments, manufacturing and public buildings would be reduced. Insurance rates on dwellings would not be affected as Neenah now enjoys the lowest rate on homes in the country.

Six More Men
The report recommended that the effective manning of the fire department be immediately increased by six men, three for each platoon and that substitutes be provided for men absent on vacation or because of prolonged illness.

Additional firemen should be appointed to provide a man on duty for each piece of apparatus in service which includes two engines and one ladder truck. A systematic drill program for firemen was also suggested.

New Fire Truck
Purchase of a new fire truck to fill certain specifications was also recommended. The truck would be a 500 gallon pumper with an 80 gallon booster tank which would undergo a 12 hour test conducted by the bureau. Sufficient hose and other auxiliary equipment should also be purchased, it was recommended.

Rural fire protection could also be undertaken with the new equipment and men and part of the cost of maintenance could be defrayed by protection subscribers.

us had been raised by "five and ten politicians" in the assembly. As a gesture, Assemblyman Charles B. Perry (R, Wauwatosa, asked that the Nelson bill be tabled to force action on the Alfonsi bill.

"I would like to give the senate a lesson and show them they cannot fight with this house," he said.

Alfonsi prevailed upon Perry to withdraw the motion, but the latter voted against the bill and was granted permission at the speaker's request to make a statement for the record why he did so.

Helps Merchants
The $75,000 will repay the counties for relief costs incurred from last February to June 1. A large part of the money, the sponsors said, will go to local merchants who had extended credit for relief supplies.

The senate concurred unanimously in two assembly amendments to the Nelson-Rush high school aid bill, to which re-enactment of present laws had been attached. Changes inserted by the assembly make the $1,385,000 for high business.

LaFollette Approves Wassermann Tests Bill

Madison—U. S. Wassermann tests for syphilis must be taken by both parties to a marriage 15 days before application for license to wed under a legislative act signed today by Governor LaFollette.

The measure, sponsored by Assemblyman Vernon Thomson (R), Richland Center, requires male and female applicants to present a physician's certificate showing tests to be negative. Previously only men were required to take the ante-natal tests.

Other bills signed were: Committee bill exempting from gift tax all property transferred to municipal or other corporations and to voluntary state associations for county, town, religious, humane, charitable or educational purposes.

Panzer bill permitting state highway commission to spend $175,000 to construct and equip a highway research laboratory and highway sign shop.

Committee bill authorizing expenditure of $1,000 to establish and maintain an additional state cooperative laboratory at LaCrosse.

COLOR PAVEMENTS
San Francisco—Experts for the 1939 Golden Gate International exposition here claim they are going to make every woman visitor look younger and more beautiful.

It's all a matter of mixing various shades of red in the paving material for sidewalks, floors and pathways. In addition to reflecting a new lustre on feminine faces, the color is supposed to relieve eyestrain.

IMPROVE ROAD
Neenah—The road encircling the Neenah water plant leading to the Municipal Bathing beach Tuesday was tarred and a coating of gravel was applied. The road had been rolled and put in shape during the last week.

Publishers Oppose Closed Shop Contracts For Editorial Workers of religion, freedom of speech, freedom of the press and freedom of assembly. Experience has proved and even now is demonstrating in Russia, Italy and Germany that the interference with one of these fundamental rights means the curtailing of the others—the collapse of liberty itself.

Freedom of the press is not an exemption accorded by the constitution for the benefit of publishers; it is but one of these four guarantees. It is a publisher's responsibility, a citizen's right—one which entitles him to an accurate statement of what is taking place in order that he may have the facts with which to judge matters of public policy and take whatever action may be necessary to protect himself and that which he holds dear.

Uncolored News
There has never been a time in our history when uncolored presentation of news was as vitally important as today. The extension of the great press associations serving news to newspapers of varying social, economic, political and religious beliefs has emphasized this development of impartial news treatment. Thousands of men and women are devoting their lives to the gathering and presentation of the news without bias.

Only upon such a foundation of fact reporting can sound public opinion and wise public policies be based.

This vital service of the press to the public can be performed properly only when those who are responsible for the publication are free to choose the persons whom they deem best qualified to report and edit the news. This responsibility cannot be discharged if some outside authority, beyond their control, determines who they shall not employ. That is precisely what the American Newspaper Guild seeks by its demand. And that demand is the more serious because the guild is now committed to a number of definite political objectives.

The recent American Newspaper Guild convention in St. Louis by resolution took positions on such debatable subjects as the war in Spain, the court bill, and the support of a particular political party, in the same convention the guild as an organization enlisted as a partisan in the tremendous public dispute now involving the entire labor movement in this country.

Unite in Objection
Following the expression on the public policies enumerated the guild laid down mandatory rules calling for a closed or guild shop. The closed shop is present in mechanical departments of the war in Spain, the court bill, and the support of a particular political party, in the same convention the guild as an organization enlisted as a partisan in the tremendous public dispute now involving the entire labor movement in this country.

We make no charge that bias is found per se in the work of a guild member. To do so would imply bias per se in a non-guild worker. Neither is true. Bias arises, however, among any group respecting any policy common to the group. No newspaper can command confidence in the fairness of its news presentation if it selects all its employees from only one political party—one religious denomination, or any one group devoted to a single cause.

Objective Observer
We do not deny that causes require champions, and that progress springs from the genius of advocates. Equally important to society, however, are those who report the controversial scene. It is the newspaperman's job to do that, not as a partisan but as an objective observer.

Therefore be it resolved that as editors and publishers here assembled from all parts of the United States we declare our unalterable opposition to the closed guild shop or any other form of pure and edit news copy and pictures for newspapers, and we hereby express our determination not to enter into any agreement upon such basis.

Oshkosh Weekly Awarded Contract By County Board

Winnebago Supervisors Change Papers for Proceedings

(Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau)

Oshkosh—Taking into consideration the saving of $901 the Winnebago county board in a surprise move Tuesday afternoon awarded the contract for the year for printing the board proceedings to the low bidder, the Fox Valley Free Press, in spite of protests of representatives of the Oshkosh Northwestern.

An offer to print both proceedings and pamphlets had been made by the county by the Northwestern, some time ago, of $1,300. This was rejected at the last meeting, and bids were requested. The Northwestern bid the same amount, $1,500, but a bid was entered by the Oshkosh weekly paper of $599.

After spirited debate, the low bid was accepted by the board by a 29 to 13 vote. As the amount of the performance bond was not inserted on motion of Supervisor Earl Hughes, reconsideration was ordered. After more debate, and the setting of the bond at $3,000, the board again voted to give the contract to the weekly, by the same vote.

The afternoon session of the board opened with consideration of a WPA project, which involved the purchase by the county of addressograph equipment, estimated at $4,700 by Aldro Jenks, district tax assessor.

When R. J. Rasmussen, Oshkosh, sought to delay action on the purchase, R. M. Heckner, Menasha, asked Mr. Jenks if delay would not jeopardize the federal grant of about $9,600. Mr. Jenks stated he was not certain as to this, but said it would mean delay in getting the project started.

THREE CALIFORNIA GIRLS FOUND STRANGLED TO DEATH

Leslie Douglas, Ripon, Is Arrested Following Accident

Neenah — Neenah police this morning charged Leslie Douglas, route 2, Ripon, with drunken driving after the car he was driving and a bicycle rider collided at the intersection of N. Commercial street and Forest avenue about 9 o'clock this morning.

The rider, Irmgard Steller, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Steller, 147 Fourth street, Neenah, was bruised and cut about the knees. She had been waiting for the lights to change at the intersection when the Douglas machine knocked her off her bicycle.

Douglas did not stop immediately but crossed the intersection where he was stopped by Neenah police. With Douglas at the time of the accident was Hugh Cohna, Pawhuska, Okla. Both will be arraigned in justice court this afternoon.

Oshkosh and Menasha Lions Meet Tonight

Menasha — The game between the Menasha and Oshkosh Lions will be played at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening on the greens.

Melvin Crowley, manager of the local club, said today that a large delegation from the Oshkosh organization would come up for the game. He did not release the complete lineup of his team, awaiting the umpire's order to "Play ball" before selecting his men, but it is admitted that he will catch behind the pitching of Harold Berro.

Transform Home Into a Circus for Birthday Party

Menasha — Circuses rarely take place in living rooms of homes but the living room of the Andrew Hopfensperger home at 300 Winnebago avenue, was transformed into a circus and carnival scene yesterday when Mrs. Hopfensperger entertained at a party for her daughter, Miss Audrey.

Rabbits, clowns, camels, bears, lions, elephants, monkeys, mules, kittens, ducks, a lamb, a goat and singing birds invaded the living room for the event. A parade of the "wild" animals was held after which the main event of the circus was presented with trick riding, trained seals putting on acts, dancers garbed in feathers and hula skirts, dogs performing tricks on poles and animals performing on ladders and barrels as only a few of the exciting acts for the guests.

The sun-room was a miniature midway with stands that gave away pink lemonade, peanuts and candy, and games of chance with prizes for winners. Noise makers and balloons added to the gaiety.

The hostess, Miss Audrey, acted as "ringmaster" and directed her animals and riders in their acts. That the performers in the ring were only wind-up toys did not hinder the enjoyment and excitement of the party for the "ringmaster" and her guests. Those attending the party were David Budny and Catherine Hyson, Wilma Rosenew, Barbara Schmalz, Maurine Schmerlein, Jean Rank and Nathan Retzlaff.

Engagement of Couple Is Told At Bridge Party

Menasha — When guests arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Christiansen, 434 Third street, last evening to attend a bridge party to which they had been invited, they found at their places little favors, on which was printed, near the picture of a Scottie, the words "we've been watching this affair just long enough" and the names of Dolores and Carleton were printed below.

In this way the announcement of the engagement of Miss Dolores Christiansen and Carleton Krause, son of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Krause, Sr., 167 E. N. Water street, Neenah, was made to friends. The marriage is to take place in August.

During the bridge games played, honors went to Leone Landis, Blanche Klinker, Mrs. Harry Schommer, Jr., Appleton, and Veda Stefek.

Public Welfare Reorganization Bill Probably Won't Pass

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Additional physical facilities at the Northern State Hospital for the Insane at Winnebago, said by the governor's citizens committee on public welfare to be "desperately needed", will wait some time before the legislature approves them, it appeared this week.

This adjournment of the legislature scheduled for Friday, numerous important bills, among them the public welfare reorganization bill introduced as the result of the citizens' committee investigations, will go into the waste basket, only to be revived if and when Governor LaFollette decides to call a special session.

When the citizens committee published its report recently, a special session was demanded to recommendations for the Winnebago and Mendota state hospitals for the insane. For the Winnebago hospital the committee recommended that separate facilities be provided for the housing of disturbed chronically insane patients and that consideration be given in future building programs to a separation of the non-psychotic from the mentally diseased.

Said the committee: "Many patients at Mendota and Winnebago who have shown a fair degree of recovery might be returned to their homes under careful supervision. The psychiatric services recommended might supply supervision, but persons are needed on the institutional staffs to develop and maintain contacts between them and the communities to which patients are to return. In one of the institutions the superintendent estimated that about 100 of his patients might be returned if such an arrangement were in effect." To effect this, the committee recommended field workers added to the staff of the hospital at Winnebago.

DISTRIBUTE LICENSES

Scouts Paint Cabin At High Cliff Park

Menasha—Boy Scouts from Troop No. 3 have been busy the past week redecorating their cabin near High Cliff park.

The exterior is being stained brown and trimmed in cream. New screens on the windows, a new screen door, four picnic tables, and a cool stove have been added. It is planned to finish the foundation underneath the building which is 20 by 24 feet in size and has one big room with a fireplace and accommodations for the scouts.

Under the direction of Donald Tesch, scoutmaster, members of the troop are making tri-weekly trips out to the cabin and expect to be finished with their improvement work in about another month.

Nine youths, six from the choir of St. Thomas Episcopal church and three from the Acovlete guild, are staying at the cabin this week. They went out last Sunday. Clement Webster is in charge of the camping trip. Today was designated as visitors' day.

NEENAH "THE BEST ALWAYS" MENASHA

Seeded Players are Winners at Valley Tennis Tournament

Riggs, Hendrix, Buxby Show Class In Their Debuts

Defending Champion Given Real Workout by Steve Richardson

NEENAH—Arthur Hendrix of Lakeland, Fla., seeded No. 2 in the Fox Valley Tennis tournament, was pushed to the limit in a second round match Tuesday afternoon by Steve Richardson, Oshkosh, at the Doly Tennis club courts.

Richardson took the first set 10-3, and battled Hendrix, defending champion, to a standstill in the second set. With games at 9-all, Hendrix began to clip the corners with beautiful forehand placements and won, 11-9. The Oshkosh lad outstepped the defending title holder throughout the match and twice was at match point but was unable to come through with the winning tally. The last set went to Hendrix, 6-2, when the local boy began to tire.

After playing a listless first set, Frank Kovacs, Oakland, Cal., came back to win the second and third from Ed Galland of Chicago. Longevity volleys featured the match with Kovacs running his older opponent from corner to corner only to drop shot over the net for consistent points. Scores were 5-7, 6-3 and 6-2.

Riggs Cops

Another Oshkosh netter, Garner Ziebell, state high school doubles champ this season, gave a fine exhibition of steady tennis before succumbing to Robert L. Riggs, Los Angeles, top seeded and fourth ranking player in the nation. Riggs took the match, 6-4 and 6-2. The No. 1 player was never extended in the match but his less experienced opponent kept him running from corner to corner and showed real possibilities.

Although Jerry Clifford, Oshkosh, lost his match, 6-2, 6-2, to Martin Buxby of Miami, Fla., seeded No. 3, he made the going rough for the expert by knocking game after game until he had Buxby a little worried. Buxby's smashing drives finally decided the issue.

Don Leavens, Milwaukee, had little trouble with Landon Buchanan, Virginia state champion, and won easily with scores of 6-1, 6-1. Jack Hall, U. S. C., was extended to three sets before winning from Gene Quinn, Chicago, by scores of 7-5, 4-6 and 6-3. The pair gave one of the best exhibitions of the afternoon.

Other second round results followed: Ruchl, Milwaukee, defeated Bill Rhodes, St. Paul, 6-0, 6-4; Morey Lewis, Gambier, Ohio, defeated Louis Saukup, St. Paul, 6-1, 6-3; Elwood Cooke, Portland, Ore., defeated Joe Ball, El Paso, Tex., 6-3, 6-4; Joe Bleckner, Oshkosh, defeated Tom Catlin, Appleton, 6-1, 6-1; Bobby Curtis, Houston, Tex., defeated Oscar Arndt, Oshkosh, 6-0, 6-0; Jack Knemeyer, U. S. C., seeded No. 3, defeated Art Parker, Neenah, 6-2, 6-1.

Toledo Turns in 10 to 1 Victory Over Minneapolis

Neat Pitching Job by Cohen Puts Mud Hens Back on Top

CHICAGO —(AP)—Toledo's Mud Hens were back on top today in their sizzling battle with Minneapolis for first place in the American association, thanks to a neat pitching job by Alta Cohen, the reformed outfielder.

Cohen, held the Millers to five hits last night, while his mates battered Leon Pettit for 11 safeties and a 10 to 1 victory in the second game of the series. The victory gave the Hens a full-game lead over Donie Bush's crew.

Morton Cooper came within two hits, both by Joe Coscarart, of a no-hit game as Columbus whipped St. Paul, 4 to 1, and moved into third place. The Red Bird fireballer never was in difficulty, walking only one man and stopping everyone but Coscarart whose hits were singles. John Rizzo fortified his position as the league's leading hitter by contributing a homer, triple, single and a walk.

Milwaukee went into a fourth place tie with Indianapolis by trimming the Indians 6 to 2, behind Al Milnar's effective pitching. The Brewer hurler gave only seven hits, and struck out eight batters. The Brewers collected 10 hits off Red Phillips.

Kansas City made it two in a row in the series by defeating Louisville, 9 to 5.

Oshkosh Braves Down Kobals, 3-1

Ninth Inning Rally of Appleton Club Stopped After Run Scores

Kobal Taverns journeyed to Oshkosh Sunday night only to drop a hard-fought game to the Oshkosh Braves by a 3 and 1 count. Fat Filz, 14-year-old relief catcher for Kobals brought the fans to their feet in the last of the ninth inning when, with two down and the bats loaded, he rapped a single to left field scoring the only run for his team.

Diener was on the mound for Kobals and turned in a good hurling job, striking out eight, walking one and giving five hits. Scheer pitched for Oshkosh and gave up two hits, walked seven and struck out eleven.

NET TOURNAMENT HITS STRIDE

Competition in the Fox River Valley Tennis tournament at Neenah became rather keen yesterday afternoon as the players indulged in second round contests for the singles title now held by Arthur Hendrix, Miami, Fla. The meet will continue through July 5. Doubles play will be started later this week.

In the top picture, Bobby Riggs, national clay court champion, has just returned a drive in his match with Garner Ziebell, Oshkosh. Riggs won the match, 6-4, 6-4, with comparatively little trouble.

The lower picture shows the finish of Frank Kovacs' battle with Ed Galland of Chicago, left, which the lanky Oakland, Cal., youth won 5-7, 6-3 and 6-2. Kovacs is only 18 years old and probably the tallest player of the tourney. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Nelson and Dudley Defeat England's Heralded Pair in Ryder Cup Match

BULLETIN

Southport, Eng. —(AP)—Towering Ralph Guldahl, the United States open golf champion, today scored an 8 and 7 victory over Alf Padgham, the British title-holder, to run the Americans' lead in the Ryder cup matches to 21 to 11.

BY GAYLE TALBOT

SOUTHPORT, Eng.—The team captains denied they arranged it, but singles play today in the Ryder cup golf matches brought together the two young men who stand out in the present competition to an extent that wouldn't have been believed 24 hours ago.

Facing each other in one of the eight singles matches were the young American, Byron Nelson, and Dai Rees, the 24-year-old Britisher whose smile knocks you in the eye harder than Joe Louis' left.

Nelson shot some of the most magnificent golf anybody ever saw as he and the veteran Ed Dudley polished off Great Britain's loudly heralded pair, Henry Cotton and Alf Padgham, 4 and 2 to help America gain a lead of 21 to 11 in the opening Scotch foursomes.

Gives Nelson Credit

At the beginning of the afternoon with everything all square Nelson simply knocked England's two greatest players into a cocked hat. Dudley was playing pretty good golf himself but he especially requested when the match ended that Nelson be given any credit that was lying around loose.

Rees, who is still only an assistant professional, was paired with his ailing and near-sighted captain, Charles A. Whitcombe. He held his elderly partner up by the back of his pants and in the end gained a half with Denny Shute and Gene Sarazen, considered by many America's strongest pair. On the eighteenth green with Sarazen's ball just barely off his line he sank a 6-foot putt that squared the match and prevented England from starting today's singles in a hopeless position.

After playing against Rees yesterday Sarazen described him as "the greatest player I've ever seen developed in England. What a honey."

Stan Haukedahl Lost To Badger Grid Team

Madison —(AP)—Stanley Haukedahl of Madison, three sport athlete, will be ineligible for competition with University of Wisconsin teams during the 1937-38 school term.

University officials said "the hawk," who played football, basketball and baseball last season, failed in two courses because of non-attendance at classes.

"A few intentional cuts and absences due to illness and road trips with the baseball and basketball teams put me out of the running," Haukedahl said. "I couldn't make up the work in my economics and history courses."

Haukedahl would have completed his collegiate athletic career next season. A popular figure on the campus, he played end on the football team, center and forward in basketball and first baseman in baseball. He is married and has two children.

Atlas Mill Softball Team to Play Forsters

Atlas Mill softballers, who defeated the Woolen Mills in an American league upset last evening, will take on the Forster Tavern team in a basketball game at the Forster diamond tonight. Friday evening the Forsters have a game scheduled at the John street diamond, with Karl's Klub of Kimberly.

Last evening the Forsters went to Waupaca and dropped a decision, 5 to 1. Stan Tesch hurled for the Taverners and allowed eight hits and fanned fourteen. Kaskey opposed him and was stringy with safeties, allowing only four.

KIMBERLY'S hard-hitting Papermakers will attempt to move up among the leaders in the Northern State Baseball league at 8:15 this evening when they play the Kaukauna Electric City Brewers at Kimberly. The contest is a regularly scheduled one as the loop attempts to make up a couple extra games.

Last Sunday the Papermakers showed their improved lineup against Manitowoc, walloped the ball all around the park and registered an 11 to 3 victory. The hitting was just so noisy that almost every club in the loop looked twice at the box score.

Al LaDuke will hurl tonight's game for the Papermakers because, among other things, Art "Lefty" Behr took himself a bride today. Sonny Wildenberg will do the catching, as usual. Kosowski will be reserve hurler.

Sven Bowman, pacing the Papermaker clubbers, will toil at first base and "Baldy" Hauk at second. Hal Schroeder will show at short and Horn at third. In the outfield there will be Cashman, Zinth and U. Wildenberg.

The combination gives Kimberly positively the hardest hitting outfit in the league. Almost any of the clubbers is liable to sock the ball a mile. The combination is the same that walloped Seymour a week ago, 17 to 0.

Kaukauna's Electric City Brews will show their regular squad with Sonny Carvernaugh doing the hurling and Kelly in reserve. "Gabby" Peck, who will be remembered in Green Bay a long time for what he told a couple league umpires last Sunday, will be behind the plate.

The Kaukauna infield will show Eggert at first, Vondrasek at second, Powell at short and Zelinski at third. In the outfield there will be Vils, Radder, Kelly, Bowers or Kappell depending on whom Manager Bowers decides to start. The Kaukauna team is a top fielding aggregation and it will have to be against the Papermakers.

The other league game tonight will have Two Rivers at Green Bay.

Petts' Married Men Again Round Out Win Over Singles

POUNDRING out six home runs, the Pettibone Married Men softballers defeated the Single Men in one of their summer battles, 24 to 21. Reports are that the Singles went down into their jeans for funds for a star hurler, in an effort to end a long string of defeats, but the importation turned out to be no better than the regulars.

The Married Men were led by Joe (Lou Gehrig) Stoeger and L. (Jimmy Fox) Wercely, who blasted two homers each. N. Belling and W. Close got one each for the same team. M. Enderer hit one homer for the Single Men.

The fact that the margin of defeat was only three runs compared to past top-sided scores has the Single Men hoping that before winter comes they'll be able to score a win.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF BY ETHEL TYLER

SYNOPSIS: Our wild, stormy weekend at Farrington Bluff, home of Michael's aunt, opens with the mysterious shooting to death of attractive Jude Blinshop. A series of strange attacks is apparently explained when we find below the bluff the body of Michael's mad father, supposedly long since dead. Then Aunt Martha is shot in the shoulder by an unknown hand, and the Skipper, Mike's tall and twined younger aunt, disappears. I leave Mike with Gay Palmer, his fiancée, and go with William, the chauffeur, to search the stable and garage for the Skipper.

Chapter 32
"FIND THOSE POWDERS!"

I needed no flashlight to tell me that the room was empty--empty and exactly as we had left it. Walking to the wardrobe door, William flung it open. The cap and trousers still hung where we had found them. Picking up the former, William turned toward me, a puzzled expression on his face. "What's this?" he said heavily, pointing to the bullet hole in its crown.

Like a flash of lightning another brainstorm struck me. I had fired Higgins' gun in the garage yesterday morning. The Skipper had fired it in the library yesterday afternoon. But only one bullet had been fired from the revolver which Higgins claimed to have found in the hall. Unless someone had cleaned the butler's gun at least twice, there must be another revolver on Farrington Bluff, and that revolver must be in the possession of the murderer!

My stare was making William uneasy. "That's a bullet hole," he said. "I'm sorry, William. I did that yesterday morning. Miss Bardara and I thought we heard someone in that closet and we weren't taking any chances. I'll get you another cap." He didn't believe it. I wondered what sort of evidence he could be piecing together in his stubborn mind around a bullet hole in a discarded old cap.

"Come along," I said briskly. "It's still light enough to take a quick look around outside, if we hurry."

We hurried. Clumping down the stairs, we raced into the open air. This time it in no way revived me. I felt as if a tremendous weight suspended over my head was being lowered by a slow, inevitable pulley. It was much darker than it had been for our search the day before, but the clearness of the air made it possible to see farther with less difficulty.

It took but a fraction of a minute to ascertain that the rocks on which the buildings stood and the beach below them were deserted. I was already sure that there was nothing between the bluff and the house for I had stood staring in that direction when I first stepped outdoors. I figured that by following the driveway we could get a pretty good view of the entire northern lawn.

Accordingly, down the drive we went, William watching to the right and I to the left. There was nothing unusual. Only numerous sticks and limbs blown by the storm. In one place half of a huge elm had been snapped off and hung suspended on a few retentive fibers, waiting for a breath of wind to send it hurtling to the ground. At the foot of the drive, water still seethed through the narrow rut separating us from the mainland.

From this point, where the bridge usually stood, the driveway of the Bluff sweeps off in a rough circle--one section going toward the garage, the other toward the house. We followed the latter, and at the house we branched off to the path which runs from the west terrace to the tennis courts and beyond them to the bathhouse. Even less of the pier was standing now. A few piles still held their ground, but they were shaking propheticly in the boiling water. The bathhouse was still completely inundated. Slowly, with difficulty we climbed the rocks, scene of Michael's downfall. No one and no trace of any one.

"Well, William," I said, "we may as well go back to the house."

He made no reply. I puffed down the rocks, nursing my stiff fingers and treading gingerly on numb feet. The weather was getting colder by the minute and our raincoats were not exactly adequate. The storm, decidedly, was over.

William had nothing to say throughout the walk back to the house. I fancied him busy with his own thoughts, in which he was no doubt hanging me with the last bit of evidence. My own thoughts were dismal. I thinking that the things happening during the Skipper's first disappearance weren't exactly calculated to cheer us up about this second one. Where the devil could she be? She had been left taking care of M. Farrington before lunch, and no one had seen her since but Higgins, when he received his orders for an early lunch. That was three or four hours ago.

Avoiding the game room door, we swerved along the rear terrace in the direction of the kitchen. As we did so, I was struck by an appalling thought. My eyes swept toward the bluff.

"We forgot one place, William!" He got what I meant--and showed it plainly.

We crossed that strip of lawn like two old men who have indulged in a skating spree and have difficulty with their underpinnings. I forced myself to look over the edge of the bluff. There was nothing but sand, water, and dead scrub grass. The tide was well out.

If there had been anything there a few hours ago, it had long since washed away, and the chances of its ever being found again on Farrington Bluff were slight. The sight of Norman Farrington's body there that morning had been pretty bad, but the mental picture of the Skipper floating for days in that churning, half-frozen water was worse. We turned dumbly back toward the house.

We let ourselves in at the main door. An unearthly silence seemed to settle down upon you in that house, enveloping you like a blanket. It was dark--much darker than it had been outside and more terrifying. I didn't want to face Michael just then, and the idea of my own company was insupportable. I followed William into the kitchen.

They were waiting for us at the kitchen table. Higgins with a dilapidated old pipe in his hand and Annie trying furiously to extinguish her cigarette. Cook's face was red, her eyes bleary, and her breath strongly alcoholic.

"Did you find her?" burst out Annie under drawn brows. Cook was regarding us edgily.

"No," I said. "Which one of you fed the dogs last?"

There was dead silence. Then Cook rumbled. "They ain't been fed. I forgot 'em, and so did Miss Bardara. The meat's there in the ice box like always."

"Who fed them Friday?" I demanded.

Cook's voice, if anything, was a little thicker. "Miss Bardara fed 'em of course. They ain't been fed since."

"Are you sure?" I snapped.

"Sure I'm sure. I handle that ice box."

"Feed them now, will you, William?" I said. Since Higgins had obviously told some of the story, there seemed little use in keeping them in the dark. The results might be disastrous when the police arrived.

"We can't find Miss Bardara," I told them. "There seems to be some danger of her having fallen over the cliff. Did any of you see her this afternoon?"

There was no answer. They were all staring at me. I turned to Higgins.

"When did she give you the order for an early lunch?"

His reply was prompt. "At 11:30. When I heard the bell, I glanced at

Total Cost of Sewage Disposal Plant $341,611

Amount Is $14,000 Under Original Estimates, Report Shows

Kaukauna—The new sewage disposal plant will cost Kaukauna taxpayers $341,611, and the total cost of the project will be $341,611, 45 per cent of which is paid by a government grant, it was made known last night when the board of public works submitted a report on the project at the adjourned meeting of the city council in the Municipal building.

The council finished business for June last night, discussed the sewage disposal plant report, and agreed to accept plans and specifications for a truck for the plant, from the board of public works. Licenses were granted to 28 tavern keepers. An ordinance amending the old police pension ordinance, was read to the council and given them to consider until next Tuesday, when the next regular meeting will be held.

Action to select a superintendent for the plant and to determine the governing body that shall have charge of the project was deferred until the next council meeting.

Reads Report—Alderman Oscar Alger, chairman of the board of public works, read the report to the council. The total estimate of the final cost, $341,611, is less than the original estimate of $355,000. The funds available at present for the payment of the city's share of $128,600 are $199,572, or $1,972 more than is needed. These funds are available from $190,000 worth of bonds and the $5,572 premium.

The actual construction cost of the sewage disposal plant is for the plant itself, $120,100; for dewatering equipment, $15,652; and for the incinerator $41,812. The pipe system through the city cost, for the manufacture of pipe, $18,317; for the construction of the sewer system, $108,655.

Other Costs—Other costs besides the actual construction were for the land and right of way, $10,600; for engineering, $21,000; for legal and administrative work $3,500. Smaller items in the other costs sheet include preliminary costs of $804; inspection $1,650; and miscellaneous $1,000.

Liquidated damages are being charged against the general contractors for 60 days that they have failed to complete the sewer contract, at $25 a day, or $1,500. With this deducted the total construction costs are $303,056. Other costs are $38,554.

There was some discussion about the amount paid for land and right of way, and City Clerk Lester Brenzel got out the record book to show the $10,600 was spent. The site of the plant cost $10,000 plus $125 interest. The rest was spent in paying for easements to property owners at $1 each, paying appraisers fees, legal expenses, and the easement solicitor's fee of $50.

Operation Costs—Some idea of the cost of operation of the plant was given when Greeley and Hansen, engineers, in a letter to the board of public works, estimated that the yearly consumption of chemicals at the plant would be five carloads of hydrated lime, one car of anhydrous ferric chloride, and one car of chlorine.

Rough figures on these chemicals were estimated at $750 for the lime; $800 for the ferric chloride; and $1000 for the chlorine. It was pointed out that the chlorine might not be necessary if the water in the river was high.

The council next voted to accept plans and specifications for a truck for the plant, if that truck can be purchased under the WPA as part of the project.

Alderman Alger introducing the truck discussion, said that the need of another truck for the city's work is growing.

Truck Needed—A few years ago our road district trucks would haul about 15 loads of rubbish a month. Every month the amount increases, and now the south side district hauls from 60 to 70 loads alone. We need the truck for the plant to haul garbage. If we get caught with another hard winter, the truck can be used to plow snow, where the light road trucks can't, and we won't have to call in the county to help us. The Kaukauna—The Kaukauna Women's club held a picnic meeting at the M. A. Raught cottage at Rockland beach yesterday as its last gathering before the summer adjournment.

High prize in contract bridge went to Mrs. Julius Martens, low to Mrs. Harry McAndrews. High prize in auction bridge was won by Mrs. W. P. Hagman. Mrs. R. J. Deloria won the door prize and Mrs. J. B. Delbridge the traveling prize.

Prizes at cards were won by Mrs. Peter Wiegand and Mrs. Frank Walsh as the Sheephead Pleasure club met at the home of Mrs. William Hoolihan Monday. The traveling prize went to Mrs. Wiegand.

The weekly ladies' day will be held at the Kaukauna Golf club Thursday. After the afternoon of golf lunch will be served and cards played at the club house.

A musical program by members featured the June meeting of the H. W. O. Music club, held at the home of Miss Lorraine Martin, Park street. Miss Helen Hoffensberger was a guest at the meeting.

truck believed most suitable is a 5-ton machine, he said.

An ordinance on police pensions, amending the old pension ordinance, was introduced by Alderman Staid and the council agreed to study it until next week's meeting and take action then.

The new ordinance changes the amount of money paid in the fund by the policemen from 1 per cent to 5 per cent of their salaries. It grants a pension to any member who is permanently injured while on duty, but that pension begins only after all his payments and benefits under the workmen's compensation act have been paid and exhausted.

Must Be On Duty—It requires that a retired policeman in good health shall do four hours of light duty at the police headquarters for six days a week, and if he does not want to do this, his pension shall be cut in half. A discharged officer, eligible for pension, will also receive only half of the stipulated sum. Authority in the pension matter is taken away from the pension board and placed in the hands of the fire and police commission.

Conspicuous in its absence was the much discussed matter of not granting a pension to any retired officer gainfully employed after his retirement from the force.

A motion providing that the old machinery in the city garage be sold for scrap iron, was adopted. This includes principally a road roller and a watering tank. Alderman Alger explained that the machinery was no longer usable, and that it would be iron to sell it now while the price of iron was up.

Completely Ruined—A burst of laughter sounded through the council chamber when Alderman Seggelink said, "I drove that roller for six weeks myself, and I know that it is completely ruined."

Petitions for two street lights, one in the center of Garfield street, and another between the corner of Lave and McKinley streets, and Holy Cross cemetery were referred to the utilities commission.

Early in the meeting Mayor Nielsen made a statement of the city's finances. The statement was made in a letter, on a letterhead from the city, and signed E. A. Dettman and company, certified public accountants.

Referring to the city, it read in part: "... we find that you have added $287,000 from your funds in major improvements, the auditorium, gymnasium, and sewage disposal system. These expenditures increased your indebtedness $51,000. In addition to this expenditure from your own funds of $287,000 the federal government has added $155,413 making the total expenditures for these two items $442,413."

Two pharmacist licenses were granted, one to Henry G. Brauer and one to Raymond S. Toonen.

A letter was received from the town clerk of the town of Vandenberg asking the city for fire protection. The town agreed to pay $100 a call, half paid by the town and half by the property owner calling the fire department. This letter was referred to the fire and police commission.

Start Registration for Vacation Reading Club

Kaukauna—Registration in the summer vacation reading club for boys and girls from grades four to seven began this morning at the public library under the direction of Miss Bernice Happer, librarian. The club will operate six weeks, ending Aug. 12.

Reading in this year will be organized in the form of a treasure hunt, and certificates of award, prizes, and a party will reward those who take part in the activities of the club. Scoring is so arranged that slow readers will have an opportunity to win as well as faster readers.

Two books will be read by each boy and girl who registers to make him eligible to belong to the club. Then each member will read one book in each of seven classifications of reading. He will be scored two points for each book. After he has finished the first round, he may begin other books for extra points. Names with the points credited to them will be posted on the treasure ship.

Many new primers and readers are now available for the use of children who need to improve their reading ability. Miss Happer says. New juvenile books prepared for circulation for use by the club members include:

"Scarlet Sheath," by Adams; "Forest Runners," by Altschuler; "Horseman of the Plains," by Altschuler; "Young Trailers," by Altschuler; "House of Her Own," by Alice; "Off to Philadelphia," by Alice; "Magic Leaves," by Brister; "Drusilla," by Brock; "War Paint," by Brown; "Footprints in the Dust," by Bailey; "Skookum and Sandy," by Bennett; "Peep-Show Man," by Colum; "Wolf Hunters," by Curwood; "Long Live the King," by Graham; "Wind in the Willows," by Graham; "Sajo and the Beaver People," by Grey Owl; "Secret of the Blue Macaw," by Forrester; "Luckypiece," by Fleury; "Sandra's Cellar," by Hess; "Little House in the Green Valley," by Hunt; "Little Girl with Seven Names," by Ingelow; "Reynard the Fox," by Larrin; "Face West," by Lull; "Paul Bunyan Swings His Axe," by McCormick; "Covered Bridge," by Meigs; "McAllister Patrol," by Mansfield; "Anne of Windy Poplars," by Montgomery; "Susan and Arabella," by Morris; "Penelope Ellen," by Parton; "Melissa Ann," by Parton; "Marty Comes to Town," by Phillips; "Jeanne Marie and Her Golden Road," by Phillips; "Riddle at Live Oaks," by Seaman; "Five Little Peppers Abroad," by Sidney; "Five Little Peppers at School," by Sidney; "Amarantha Gay, M. Kappells Trounce Kemkes, 9 to 6

Winners are Bolstered by Two Players From State League

Rennicks and the South Side Merchants are scheduled to meet in tonight's battle.

The Kappell outfit was clicking everything hit to them, and at the plate they made their hits count for batting was an agreement among the players that each one striking out contribute a nickel to a fund set aside for financing a party at the end of the season. Paul Balaz pitched for the winners, Bill Kuchmeister for Kemkes.

28 Taverns are Given Licenses At Council Meet

Kaukauna—Twenty-eight tavern-keepers were granted Class B licenses and two wholesalers were granted Class A licenses at the adjourned meeting of the city council last night in the Municipal building.

Two new licenses were issued, one to Joseph V. Derus, who will open a tavern at 161 W. Wisconsin avenue and one to Mrs. Eleanor Hansen, who will open a tavern at 101 West Second street.

Class A licenses for wholesalers were granted to Anton Ashauer and to the South Kaukauna Dairy company.

There was some discussion concerning the granting of a license to Mrs. Hansen, because of a city ordinance that requires that the licensee must have lived in the city for one year previous to the opening of a tavern. Another city ordinance, however, states that if a person purchases the building in which he goes into the tavern business, the one year rule shall not hold.

Testimony was furnished that Mrs. Hansen had made payment on the building and received a land contract for it. Harry McAndrews, city attorney, explained that this was considered as good as a deed and mortgage.

Mayor Sees Need For Economy to Avoid Deficit

Can't Reduce 1938 Tax Rate Without Watching Budget, He Says

New London—Strictest economy and adherence to the budget for the remainder of the year 1937 is vitally necessary if the city of New London is to close the year without a deficit and reduce the tax rate for 1938, Mayor E. W. Wendlandt told members of the Lions club in a talk at a meeting at Elwood hotel yesterday.

Expenditures for the first five months of the year have far exceeded budget appropriations and close control will be required to operate the city the next seven months on the remainder, the mayor pointed out. Following of the budget requirements is made difficult by pressure from various departments and demands of organizations within the community, he declared.

Too Much Spending
Citing the park as an example, the mayor showed where more than $4,000 has been expended there this year where only $1,500 was provided. The business people themselves were responsible in part for the purchase of a large park, only a small portion of which the city will ever be able to maintain, he charged.

Mr. Wendlandt traced the financial development of the city during recent years and delved into its present problems in detail. Again he urged the adoption of a light and water commission to manage the city's $100,000 business in preference to a board of public works.

New London Girls Defeat Gordon Bents of Green Bay

New London—Displaying their usual prowess at softball despite a few errors, the New London Bumps Bowlers Candy girls trampled the Gordon Bent Sports of Green Bay 12 to 6 in a game under the lights here last night. So far the girls have lost only to the Oshkosh 1936 champs, having defeated all others in this area.

The New London pitchers held the Bay girls to four hits while they fanned 11. Carmen Van Stratten whiffed seven in five innings and Mary Dawson turned back four in the last two innings, walking only one. Only three New London girls fanned, one walked.

Ageline Runge second baseman for the candy girls, accumulated three errors but only because she played half the fielding game by herself. Exactly nine of the 18 drives on balls went her way. At bat she pounded out two singles. Mary Dawson on first base was on the receiving end of most of the put-outs.

The local girls came back into heavy hitting compared to the Green Bay team and collected 13 hits. Carmen VanStratten led off with a home run in the fourth inning. She also counted two other singles. Alice Babcock, a Northport girl, banged two doubles, one each in the second and third innings that counted for several runs.

The Sports team in their classy purple uniforms failed to get into the game until the sixth inning while Dawson was warming up in the box. Leading off with a single they counted on two errors and then scored on a double by Pollard to bring in four runs. Dawson cut it short by breezing two in a row.

The girls are planning a game at Dunes Country club inn Sunday.
